UNIDENTIFIED MAN IS FOUND BRUTALLY SLAIN; START PROBE

Victim's Body Set Afire
After Being Killed
By Gun

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W. Va., Nov. 7.—(The) body of an unidentified man was found near Pine Grove today. Two bullet holes had pierced the man's temple. Marks of automobile wheels nearby where the body was found furnished basis for the belief that the brutal slayers had committed the murder elsewhere and had dumped the body there. All marks of identification have been removed from the body of the slain man.

Discovery of the body was made by Thomas Kent, a line walker. Pieces of the fire-eaten blankets, in which the body was wrapped, were still smoldering when Kent found the gruesome bundle, he said.

County authorities, who were immediately notified, rushed to the scene and made a hurried examination of the body. Attempts were made to trace the automobile tracks, but they were lost at the state highway.

Sheriff L. B. Snyder broadcast a description of the slain man over the radio. The body was held in a Pine Grove morgue, pending identification.

A coroner's jury examination of the body resulted in a verdict that "the party, unknown, came to death from gunshot wounds inflicted by a person or persons, unknown."

Sheriff Snyder said the man was about 40 years of age. His height was five feet, six inches. He weighed 140 pounds.

Officials expressed the belief that the body had been set afire between four and five hours before it was discovered by Kent.

HUSBAND HELD AFTER ATTACK

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Nov. 7.—A charge of arson and assault in an alleged attempt to burn his wife to death today was denied by Howard Swavely, who insisted his wife's accusations were created in her mind by delirium caused by her injuries.

His wife Elizabeth, severely and perhaps fatally burned, dictated a statement to police from her hospital bed, charging that Swavely set fire to her night clothing in an attempt to kill her and collect insurance.

Swavely told the police the fire started from a gas heater in the bedroom, and that he did his best to put it out.

Mrs. Swavely was found by firemen who were called to put out the fire in the couple's furnished room in Jersey City. The firemen called the police after investigating conditions in the room, and police took Swavely to the hospital and his presence questioned his wife.

HUGE FLYING BOAT FLIES OVER HOLLAND

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 7.—Carrying twenty invited guests, the giant German flying boat DO-X took off from the Schellingwoude Basin today on a sightseeing trip over Holland.

Commander Friedrich Christiansen planned to give his passengers a bird's eye view of Amsterdam, the Hague and other Dutch cities. After an hour's flight the great ship returned here and made a graceful descent to the harbor. All of the passengers were greatly pleased with the performance of the craft.

SCHALL COMES FROM BEHIND TO WIN SEAT

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 7.—The re-election of Thomas D. Schall, Republican, to the United States senate was a certainty today although the vote from ninety rural precincts had not yet been tabulated.

Although Einar Holdale, Democrat, was leading by a wide margin on first returns, Senator Schall cut down his lead as the rural vote was gathered. Schall's lead was estimated in excess of 8,200 votes today as the results from the outstanding communities were being tabulated.

OHIO'S FIRST LADY

Here is Miss Mary White who became the first lady of Ohio by virtue of her father's victory over Gov. Myers Y. Cooper. George White, governor-elect, is a widower. Miss White, who was graduated from Smith College just two years ago, will be mistress of the governor's mansion at Columbus.

BELIEVE PARTISAN LEGISLATION WILL BE DOOMED IN OHIO

Republicans Not In Sufficient Number To Beat Veto

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 7.—Possibility that strictly partisan legislation of major import will be taboo during the Ohio legislative session this winter loomed today.

Although complete unofficial returns give the Republicans control of both the senate and house of representatives, the margin of control is not sufficient to permit the G. O. P. solons to pass legislative measures over the vetoes of Governor-elect George White without aid from Democratic legislators.

It would require a three-fifths vote in either legislative branch to annul a veto registered by the new Democratic chief executive of the Buckeye state.

According to unofficial returns from Tuesday's election, there will be eighteen Republican and fourteen Democratic state senators with at least nineteen votes necessary to pass a measure over the governor's veto. In the house, there are apparently seventy-one Republicans and fifty-seven Democrats, with at least seventy-six votes required to annul a veto by the governor.

If the complete official returns fail to materialize in the extortive Republican control in the legislative chambers, it may become necessary for Governor-elect White and G. O. P. legislative leaders to reach certain agreements before important legislative measures affecting the state's taxation system, the penal, correctional and welfare institutions, and other major state problems are enacted into laws.

Unless the administrative and legislative branches of the state government arrive at some sort of a truce under these circumstances, a stalemate may develop and enactment of important legislation might become impossible during the coming session of the Ohio legislature. The majority and minority members of both houses will hold separate caucuses in the legislative chambers in December and determine their selections for the various legislative offices. Persons chosen at these caucuses will be elected formally when the senate and house perfect their organizations shortly after New Year's Day.

State Senators Robert L. Robe, of Tiffin, and Joseph N. Ackerman, of Cleveland, and State Senator-elect Earl R. Lewis of St. Clairsville, are being mentioned for prominent pro tem and Republican floor leader in the senate.

Statehouse gossip would indicate that the positions of speaker of the house and speaker pro tem, who is the G. O. P. floor leader, may be filled by two of the following legislators: Representative Arthur Hamilton, of Lebanon, now speaker pro tem of the house; Representative Charles H. Jones, Jackson, and Representative Horace S. Klefer, Springfield.

OHIO MINE BLAST TOLL 79

OPPOSITION TO DRY LAW HAS DEVELOPED WITHIN FOUR YEARS

Sentiment Has Grown Since 1926; Seven States Are Wet

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The rising wet tide of the past year which reached a high mark Tuesday for the ten year sway of prohibition, has been without recession since 1926, an analysis of state referenda on the prohibition issue, disclosed today.

Slow at the beginning of the revolution when the first referenda were held in eight states, the movement to override the eighteenth amendment only gained serious momentum within the past few months. Now one seventh of the forty-eight states have voted wet in one form or another where the people have had a direct vote.

States voting against prohibition since 1926 are: Illinois, twice; Massachusetts, twice; Wisconsin, twice; Montana, twice; Nevada, New York and Rhode Island.

The four voting for various forms of prohibition are: North Dakota, Colorado, California and Missouri.

Maryland, New York, Nevada, Montana, and Wisconsin, previous to Tuesday, had no enforcement statutes, and now is added Massachusetts.

Strangely enough, Connecticut and Rhode Island have enforcement acts despite the fact that neither ratified the eighteenth constitutional amendment.

Last Tuesday the prohibition issue was dealt with in state referenda in Rhode Island, Illinois and Massachusetts, and in April last, Wisconsin voted. All went wet.

In Rhode Island the issue was whether the eighteenth amendment should be retained. The people said "no" by a three to one vote.

Illinois voted on three questions, one on repeal, one on modification of the Volstead act, and one for the repeal of the Illinois search and seizure act. All three carried for the wets by large majorities.

Massachusetts voted solely to repeal its state enforcement act, known as the "baby Volstead act."

In April the Wisconsin vote was on repeal of the state enforcement act and repeal was ordered by a majority of more than 120,000. The Wisconsin legislature carried out the mandate.

Massachusetts and Montana expressed themselves in November 1928, the former on a question of instructions to memorialize congress for repeal of the 18th amendment, and Montana on a question of restoring an enforcement act repealed in 1926. In Massachusetts the wets won by a majority of 283, 223, and in Montana by a majority of 12,000.

In the referenda of 1926 in New York, Illinois, Colorado, California, Missouri, Wisconsin, Montana and Nevada, the results were:

Illinois went wet by a vote of 540,631 to 556,592.

Wisconsin voted for modification of the Volstead act to permit 2.75 beer by a majority of 171,643.

Nevada voted wet on two questions, requesting congress to call a constitutional convention to revise the 18th amendment, and denouncing the Volstead act as a failure, by a majority of 9,153.

Montana repealed its state prohibition clause by a majority of 10,249.

New York voted wet by a majority of 1,164,586.

These states remained steadfast to the dries in 1926:

POISON LIQUOR TOLL MOUNTS; SIX ARE DEAD

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 7.—The death toll in Uniontown's "poison liquor mystery" mounted to six today with the discovery of two more bodies on the outskirts of the city.

Pathologists at the Uniontown Hospital reported that unmistakable evidence of wood alcohol was found in the stomach of at least three of the victims.

The death toll: Norman Lehigh, 50; John Paslorious, 50; Lloyd Maust, 35; Harry Huey, 56; Clyde Williams, 42; and Charles Uglow, 46.

Where the liquor was obtained and whether all six victims had partaken of the same draught were questions puzzling authorities.

First post-mortem results indicated the men had drunk automobile radiator alcohol. District Attorney J. B. Adams declared today that first degree murder charges would be preferred against the man who sold the alcohol if his identity is learned.

Another angle being investigated was the report that the chemical room in the basement of the central fire house had been looted. Huey's body was found in the building housing the fire department.

HE HOLDS POWER

No senator in history has occupied so powerful a position as Hendrik Shipstead of Minnesota, Farmer-Labor senator. He holds the balance of power and can either throw his vote to the party which holds 48 votes, enabling it to organize the senate, or cast it for the minority, thereby precipitating a puzzling situation. He always has been independent, casting his vote with Democrats as frequently as Republicans.

SEVEN OHIO TOWNS FACE WATER FAMINE

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 7.—With the deficiency of rainfall in the Buckeye State this year the greatest on record, at least seven Ohio municipalities and villages today are in danger of water famine, according to information available at the offices of the state health department.

As a result of last summer's drought, the following places have only a relatively few days' supply of water: Barnesville, Blanchester, Caldwell, New Concord, Oberlin, Wellington and Woodsfield.

Health department officials declared that only "heavy and prolonged" rains within the next few days will eliminate the need for hauling water, by truck or tank car, to some of the stricken municipalities. Inasmuch as November and December are classified as "dry" months, not much hope of any improvement in the situation was held by department officials.

GLORIA SWANSON IS AWARDED DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 7.—After brief testimony—three minutes—Gloria Swanson, film actress, who charged she had been deserted by her husband, the Marquis de La Falaise, today had been awarded an interlocutory divorce decree.

This was Miss Swanson's third divorce. Her first husband was Wallace Beery, film actor, and her second, Herbert Sornborn, Hollywood cafe owner.

FOX THEATERS ARE ATTACKED BY FILM GROUP

United Artists Stars Charge Fox With Degrading Films

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 7.—Owner-members and stars of United Artists today threw down the gauntlet to Fox West-Coast Theaters, charging that organization with attempting to "cheapen and degrade the motion picture industry."

A statement issued at the office of Joseph M. Schenck, president of United Artists, and bearing the names of Charles Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks, Gloria Swanson, Eddie Cantor, Al Jolson, Joseph Schenck, Ronald Colman, Samuel Goldwyn, Norma Talmadge, and D. W. Griffith, charged:

1.—That Fox West-Coast Theaters is an arrogant monopoly and it has made demands which United Artists cannot and will not accept.

2.—That it has attained its powerful monopolistic position through money derived from the sale of stock to the American public.

3.—That the money is now being used to cheapen and degrade the motion picture itself.

4.—That the monopoly intends to pay the producers less and charge the American public as much as ever.

Shown the statement of United Artists, Harley L. Clarke, president of Fox West-Coast Theaters, said:

"Fox West-Coast Theaters and all other theater organizations always have been and will continue to be willing to purchase United Artist pictures on the same terms upon which they purchase pictures from other producers."

"We shall continue as heretofore to exercise our best judgment in the selection of pictures to be shown to our patrons."

ADVERTISING WILL CORRECT BUSINESS ILLS SAYS BABSON

Economist Suggests Remedy To Help Circulation

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Roger W. Babson, noted economist, gives advertising as his prescription for business ills.

Writing in the current Collier's Weekly Babson says that advertising on a larger scale than the world has ever known will prove necessary stimulant toward economic recovery.

"As one who has studied business depression in life rather than in libraries," he says, "I see in current conditions the call for advertising."

"There's nothing wrong with the patient but poor circulation. Money is being held instead of circulated. Advertising ideally is fitted and competent to accelerate the situation. It is the most effective known force for accomplishing the speeding up of money and thereby giving us more business at times when more business is the nation's greatest need."

NEW ARMS LIMITATION PLAN OFFERED

GENEVA, Nov. 7.—Finding the delegates in an unusually receptive mood, Viscount Cecil of Chelwood today presented to the League of Nations' preparatory disarmament commission a new method for the limitation of armaments.

The proposal, revolving about a system of global tonnage allotments for the various navies, met with sympathetic treatment at the

STRICKEN VILLAGE PREPARES FUNERAL RITES FOR VICTIMS

Probe Is Launched; Nine-teen Saved Owe Lives To Hero

MILLFIELD, O., Nov. 7.—Shaken by the horror of the mine tragedy which took the lives of seventy-nine breadwinners, bereaved families today sorrowfully began making funeral arrangements for their dead while federal officials conducted a thorough investigation into the cause of the overwhelming disaster.

Funerals for the victims of the explosion which ripped number six mine of the Sunday Creek Coal Company were to be held at intervals today and tomorrow. Only nineteen of the crew of mine workers, who were caught in the blast-deluge, survived the disaster. Sixteen of them were being treated in a hospital at Athens today. All were expected to recover.

Mine number six, which was a bee-hive of feverish rescue work yesterday, today stood, wrecked and silent, a monument to the terrible disaster. There was little activity there today with the exception of the federal investigation into the causes of the fatal explosion.

Officials of the United States Bureau of Mines entered the workings of the blast-torn mine on a thorough and painstaking inspection tour. They were expected to report on their findings in several days.

Numerous theories were set up as to the cause of the explosion. One that was given considerable credence was that pressure from beneath caused the floor of the drift to lift, effecting what is technically known as a "squeeze," which burst out the portals of the old workings and let loose the deadly gas. An open carbide lamp probably ignited the gas and caused the explosion, it was believed.

When the blast let go, hurling debris of stone, earth and coal pell-mell through the mine, there were 213 men in the mine, including, W. E. Tytus, president of the Sunday Creek Company; P. A. Coen, vice president of the company, and other officials. They were among those who never came out alive.

Only 118 of the 213 men in the workings were able to make their way out of the mine in safety. The bodies of seventy-nine of the remainder were found under debris within forty feet of the foot of the air shaft.

The nineteen survivors owed their lives to John Dean, mine boss, who when the blast alarm was spread throughout the workings, marshalled the little group into a small room off the main entry and directed the building of canvas and timber brattices which kept out the poisonous gases.

Dean was in a serious condition today as a result of his heroic work. He was expected to recover, however.

"No doubt, many more men would have been saved had they followed Dean instead of rushing for the main entry which was choked with the deadly monoxide gas," Howard Davis, one of the survivors, said. "We saw several rush into the dense smoke and collapse."

The mine disaster, which occurred Wednesday afternoon, is the first of serious proportions in the history of Hocking Valley mining, which extends back to 1825.

LIBERTY BONDS

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Opening price quotations for government bonds today were: Liberty 3-12s $101.12; first 4-14s $102.19; fourth 4-14s $103.18 and Treasury 4s $108.26.

INFANT KILLED, FIVE OTHERS HURT IN TRIPLE COLLISION

PAINESVILLE, O., Nov. 7.—Two-year-old Vernon Sherk of Harbor Creek, Pa., was dead and five other persons were injured, one perhaps fatally, here today, as the result of a traffic accident in which a truck and two automobiles figured last night.

The injured were: John Edge, 24, of Dorchester, Mass., pedestrian, who is believed to have been hit by the truck. He suffered probable fatal internal injuries.

Fred Sherk, 30, father of Vernon, who received a broken right arm, cuts and bruises.

Mrs. La Verne Sherk, 28, the mother, cuts and bruises.

BUSINESS TO CEASE ARMISTICE DAY FOR CELEBRATION HERE

Merchants Unite To Make Program In Xenia Success

Business will cease in Xenia at noon Tuesday, November 11 with store owners and clerks joining hundreds of Greene County citizens who will be here for the dedication of the new National Guard Armory and official observance of Armistice Day. The city's banks will not open their doors and the majority of offices will be closed throughout the day including all county and municipal offices.

Many of the events of the day that have been prepared for the enjoyment of the huge crowd expected to visit Xenia are a direct result of the business men's participation through their organizations, The Retail Merchants Association, the Rotary Club, and the Kiwanis Club. Joining hands with patriotic societies and fraternal organizations, the business leaders of Xenia have aided in preparing a program that will be thoroughly enjoyable from the first event in the morning to the conclusion late at night.

Practically all merchants in the city have indicated to the joint committee headed by President Mann of the Retail Merchants Association that they will close their doors at noon. It is the first time in the history of Xenia that concerted action has been obtained for the observance of Armistice Day and patriotic societies of the city have unanimously approved this action.

The two minute silence starting at 11 a. m. and continuing to 11:02 a. m. will be observed generally in stores and factories this year. It has been aided in this is the only observance in Xenia proper for the morning hours as the American Legion Memorial service is to be held at the O. S. and S. O. Home at 10:30 a. m.

Gaily decorated store fronts with the uniform flag system lining the sidewalks will add a gala atmosphere to the city by the time the parade gets under way at 2:30 p. m. Marching to the doors of the new armory the parade, planned as one of the largest affairs of the nature within the history of Xenia, will disband for the official dedicatory services.

Adjutant General Reynolds of the Ohio National Guard will present the armory to Greene County with State Representative R. D. Williamson accepting it on behalf of the community. "Retreat" will be observed at 5 p. m.

A banquet will be enjoyed at the Masonic Temple at 6 p. m. followed by a grand military ball in the armory starting at 8 and continuing until 12. Tickets for the banquet and the dance are now on sale, and may be obtained from nearly every business house in Xenia.

His proposal—a new program for the "wet bloc"—forecast another legislative "war" over prohibition this winter more bitter, perhaps, than that of the last session. "Congress should immediately amend the Volstead act to provide light wines and beer manufactured and sold under strict government supervision, with the saloon outlawed forever," said Bloom.

"The psychological effect would be to give the people the idea that good times are coming. Millions would be spent to prepare for the manufacture of beer and huge supplies of farm products would be bought."

"The government would collect hundreds of millions a year in taxes, thus averting any possibility of a deficit, and making possible further tax reduction which would support business."

Other active anti-prohibition members of the house are expected to return to Washington within a few days to prepare for their drive in the short session although the house members elected Tuesday do not take office until March 4.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The treasury statement as of Nov. 5: Treasury balance, $181,659,489.84. Expenditures, $5,588,955.42. Customs receipts, $4,109,354.53.

CHIEF FISHER HURT FIGHTING BLAZE AT CHURCH ST. HOUSE

Removed To Hospital After Falling From Residence Roof

Fire Chief Herman Fisher, 38, is confined in McClellan Hospital with severe injuries suffered in a twenty-two-foot fall from the roof of a two-story dwelling at 232 W. Church St., which was partly destroyed by fire Thursday night.

After firemen had finally subdued the flames about 10:45 p. m., Chief Fisher, who had been making a final inspection tour of the sloping roof to make certain the blaze was entirely extinguished, was preparing to join his comrades on the ground below when he lost his footing. He landed heavily on his right hip on a flat tin roof one story below and then bounced to the ground. Firemen rushed him to the hospital, where it was ascertained he sustained fractures of the right pelvic bone in three places.

The two-story frame residence, owned by Mrs. Luella Jackson, was occupied by Clarence E. Wilson, painter, and his family, but members of the family had gone to a movie and the house was vacant when the fire broke out in the cellar at 9:15 p. m.

The flames ate their way through the floors and up the partition, burning the roof almost entirely off. Heavy damage was also caused to the interior of the residence and household furnishings due to smoke and water, and it was estimated the loss may be approximately $4,000.

While firemen were fighting the blaze, it was reported that a child was asleep in a bedroom on the second floor. Firemen made their way through the dense smoke to investigate but after a careful inspection of all the rooms found the rumor was without foundation.

Firemen attributed the blaze to burning soot dropping down the flue into the cellar and igniting rubbish or papers.

The residence of Lawrence D. Wilson and family, 114 W. Third St., where considerable damage was caused by fire and water last Friday night, was the scene of a second minor blaze, which firemen extinguished without difficulty at 7:03 a. m. Friday.

At the time of the first fire part of the roof had been burned off by flames originating on the third floor, and pending repairs, a tarpaulin had been used to cover the opening. Sparks from the chimney flue are believed to have ignited the tarpaulin Friday morning. The canvass was burned and the already charred rafters were covered a little more, but the fire was quenched easily with a chemical.

EFFORT TO RESTORE WINES, BEER, PLAN AS WETS SHOW GAIN

Wet Solon Proposes Change To Help Unemployment

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—An immediate drive by the congressional "wet bloc" for light wines and beer for the twin purpose of relieving the unemployment and providing hundreds of millions for the treasury was proposed today by Rep. Sam Houston, Texas, in the opening shot in a new anti-prohibition drive based on Tuesday's election.

Although ballots are still being counted, Bloom returned to Washington declaring that the country had evidenced a distinct anti-prohibition trend and the time is ripe for action.

His proposal—a new program for the "wet bloc"—forecast another legislative "war" over prohibition this winter more bitter, perhaps, than that of the last session. "Congress should immediately amend the Volstead act to provide light wines and beer manufactured and sold under strict government supervision, with the saloon outlawed forever," said Bloom.

Montana repealed its state prohibition clause by a majority of 10,249.

New York voted wet by a majority of 1,164,586.

Colorado on a modification movement by 46,923; and California by a majority of 62,617, and Missouri by 275,543 voted to sustain their enforcement acts. North Dakota rejected a proposal to repeal the prohibition clause of the state constitution by a majority of 6,199.

RECOGNITION FOR BRAZIL POUNDERED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Indications that the revolutionary regime in Brazil was becoming stabilized brought to the fore anew today the problem facing the state department regarding recognition.

Officials consider it an almost foregone conclusion that formal recognition by the American government would have to be granted sooner or later, but the state department is moving with caution.

It is an anomalous situation however. American Ambassador Morgan is still at his post, and Brazilian Ambassador Do Amaral is in Washington. Reports have reached diplomatic circles that the latter may be replaced by another, but Morgan has notified the department he is persona grata with the new regime in Rio de Janeiro.

BANDITS ROB TRAIN

BERKELEY, Calif., Nov. 7.—Five bandits today held up Southern Pacific passenger train No. 26 near here and robbed the mail and express car. They escaped in an automobile with valuable registered mail pouches and express packages and money for industrial payrolls, totaling several thousand dollars.

POISON LIQUOR TOLL MOUNTS; SIX ARE DEAD

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 7.—The death toll in Uniontown's "poison liquor mystery" mounted to six today with the discovery of two more bodies on the outskirts of the city.

Pathologists at the Uniontown Hospital reported that unmistakable evidence of wood alcohol was found in the stomach of at least three of the victims.

The death toll: Norman Lehighy, 50; John Pastors, 50; Lloyd Maust, 35; Harry Huey, 56; Clyde Williams 42, and Charles Uglow 46.

Where the liquor was obtained and whether all six victims had partaken of the same draught were questions puzzling authorities.

First post-mortem results indicated the men had drunk automobile radiator alcohol. District Attorney J. B. Adams declared today that first degree murder charges would be preferred against the man who sold the alcohol if his identity is learned.

Another angle being investigated was the report that the chemical room in the basement of the central fire house had been looted. Huey's body was found in the building housing the fire department.

HE HOLDS POWER

No senator in history has occupied so powerful a position as Hendrik Shipstead of Minnesota, Farmer-Labor senator. He holds the balance of power and can either throw his vote to the party which holds 48 votes, enabling it to organize the senate, or cast it for the minority, thereby precipitating a puzzling situation. He always has been independent, casting his vote with Democrats as frequently as Republicans.

SEVEN OHIO TOWNS FACE WATER FAMINE

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 7.—With the deficiency of rainfall in the Buckeye State this year the greatest on record, at least seven Ohio municipalities and villages today are in danger of water famine, according to information available at the offices of the state health department.

As a result of last summer's drought, the following places have only a relatively few days' supply of water: Barnesville, Blanchester, Caldwell, New Concord, Oberlin, Wellington and Woodsfield.

Health department officials declared that only "heavy and prolonged" rains within the next few days will eliminate the need for hauling water, by truck or tank car, to some of the stricken municipalities.

GLORIA SWANSON IS AWARDED DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 7.—After brief testimony—three minutes—Gloria Swanson, film actress, who charged she had been deserted by her husband, the Marquis De La Falaise, today had been awarded an interlocutory divorce decree.

This was Miss Swanson's third divorce. Her first husband was Wallace Beery, film actor, and her second, Herbert Somborn, Hollywood cafe owner.

FOX THEATERS ARE ATTACKED BY FILM GROUP

United Artists Stars Charge Fox With Degrading Films

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 7.—Owner-members and stars of United Artists today threw down the gauntlet to Fox West-Coast Theaters, charging that organization with attempting to "cheapen and degrade the motion picture industry."

A statement issued at the office of Joseph M. Schenck, president of United Artists, and bearing the names of Charles Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks, Gloria Swanson, Eddie Cantor, Al Jolson, Joseph Schenck, Norman Colman, Samuel Goldwyn, Norma Talmadge, and D. W. Griffith, charged:

1.—That Fox West Coast Theaters is an arrogant monopoly and it has made demands which United Artists cannot and will not accept.

2.—That it has attained its powerful monopolistic position through money derived from the sale of stock to the American public.

3.—That the money is now being used to cheapen and degrade the motion picture itself.

4.—That the monopoly intends to pay the producers less and charge the American public as much as ever.

Showing the statement of United Artists, Harley L. Clarke, president of Fox West Coast Theaters, said:

"Fox West Coast Theaters and all other Fox theater organizations always have been and will continue to be willing to purchase United Artist pictures on the same terms upon which they purchase pictures from other producers."

"We shall continue as heretofore to exercise our best judgment in the selection of pictures to be shown to our patrons."

ADVERTISING WILL CORRECT BUSINESS ILLS SAYS BABSON

Economist Suggests Remedy To Help Circulation

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Roger W. Babson, noted economist, gives advertising as his prescription for business ills.

Writing in the current Collier's Weekly Babson says that advertising on a larger scale than the world has ever known will prove necessary stimulant toward economic recovery.

"As one who has studied business depression in life rather than in libraries," he says, "I see in current conditions the call for advertising."

"There's nothing wrong with the patient but poor circulation. Money is being held instead of circulated."

"Advertising ideally is fitted and competent to accelerate the situation. It is the most effective known force for accomplishing the speeding up of money and thereby giving us more business at times when more business is the nation's greatest need."

NEW ARMS LIMITATION PLAN OFFERED

GENEVA, Nov. 7.—Finding the delegates in an unusually receptive mood, Viscount Cecil of Chelwood today presented to the League of Nations' preparatory disarmament commission a new method for the limitation of armaments.

The proposal, revolving about a system of global tonnage allotments for the various navies, met with sympathetic treatment at the hands of Italian, French, American and Soviet spokesmen.

STRICKEN VILLAGE PREPARES FUNERAL RITES FOR VICTIMS

Probe Is Launched; Nineteen Saved Owe Lives To Hero

MILLFIELD, O., Nov. 7.—Shaken by the horror of the mine tragedy which took the lives of seventy-nine breadwinners, bereaved families today sorrowfully began making funeral arrangements for their dead while federal officials conducted a thorough investigation into the cause of the overwhelming disaster.

Funerals for the victims of the explosion, which ripped number six mine of the Sunday Creek Coal Company were to be held at intervals today and tomorrow. Only nineteen of the crew of mine workers, who were caught in the blast-deluge, survived the disaster. Sixteen of them were being treated in a hospital at Athens today.

All were expected to recover. Mine number six, which was a beehive of feverish rescue work yesterday, today stood, wrecked and silent, a monument to the terrible disaster. There was little activity there today with the exception of the federal investigation into the causes of the fatal explosion.

Officials of the United States Bureau of Mines entered the workings of the blast-torn mine on a thorough and painstaking inspection tour. They were expected to report on their findings in several days.

Numerous theories were set up as to the cause of the explosion. One that was given considerable credence was that pressure from beneath caused the floor of the drift to lift, effecting what is technically known as a "squeeze," which burst out the portals of the old workings and let loose the deadly gas. An open carbide lamp probably ignited the gas and caused the explosion, it was believed.

When the blast let go, hurling debris of stone, earth and coal pell-mell through the mine, there were 213 men in the mine, including W. E. Tytus, president of the Sunday Creek Company; P. A. Coen, vice president of the company, and other officials. They were among those who never came out alive.

Only 118 of the 213 men in the mine were able to make their way out of the mine in safety. The bodies of seventy-nine men, the remainder were found under debris within forty feet of the foot of the air shaft.

The nineteen survivors owed their lives to John Dean, mine boss, who when the blast alarm was spread throughout the workings, marshalled the little group into a small room off the main entry and directed the building of canvas and timber brattices which kept out the poisonous gases.

Dean was in a serious condition today as a result of his heroic work. He was expected to recover, however.

"No doubt, many more men would have been saved had they followed Dean instead of rushing for the main entry which was choked with the deadly, monoxide gas," Howard Davis, one of the survivors, said. "We saw several rush into the dense smoke and collapse."

The mine disaster, which occurred Wednesday afternoon, is the first of serious proportions in the history of Hocking Valley mining, which extends back to 1825.

LIBERTY BONDS

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Opening price quotations for government bonds today were: Liberty 3 1-2 $101.12; first 4 1-4 $102.19; fourth 4 1-4 $103.18 and Treasury 5 $108.26.

A banquet will be enjoyed at the Masonic Temple at 6 p. m. followed by a grand military ball in the armory starting at 8 and continuing until 12. Tickets for the banquet and the dance are now on sale, and may be obtained from nearly every business house in Xenia.

which a truck and two automobiles figured late last night.

The injured were: John Edge, 24, of Dorchester, Mass., pedestrian, who is believed to have been hit by the truck. He suffered probable fatal internal injuries.

Fred Shenk, 30, father of Vernon, who received a broken right arm, cuts and bruises.

Mrs. La Verne Shenk, 28, the mother, cuts and bruises.

Fred Shenk Jr., 3, brother of Vernon, cuts and bruises.

Joe Zytowicki, 35, of Concord, near Painesville, driver of a second automobile, broken left leg, cuts and bruises.

Police said Wallace Tucker of Cleveland, while driving his truck, sideswiped and overturned the Shenk machine. The truck then hit Zytowicki's machine which rammed into a telephone pole and overturned, according to police. Tucker was uninjured.

BUSINESS TO CEASE ARMISTICE DAY FOR CELEBRATION HERE

Merchants Unite To Make Program In Xenia Success

Business will cease in Xenia at noon Tuesday, November 11 with store owners and clerks joining hundreds of Greene County citizens who will be here for the dedication of the new National Guard Armory and official observance of Armistice Day. The city's banks will not open their doors and the majority of offices will be closed throughout the day including all county and municipal offices.

Many of the events of the day that have been prepared for the enjoyment of the huge crowd expected to visit Xenia are a direct result of the business men's participation through their organizations, The Retail Merchants Association, the Rotary Club, and the Kiwanis Club. Joining hands with patriotic societies and fraternal organizations, the business leaders of Xenia have aided in preparing a program that will be thoroughly enjoyable from the first event in the morning to the conclusion late at night.

Practically all merchants in the city have indicated to the joint committee headed by President Mann of the Retail Merchants Association that they will close their doors at noon. It is the first time in the history of Xenia that concerted action has been obtained for the observance of Armistice Day and patriotic societies of the city have unanimously approved this action.

The two minute silence starting at 11 a. m. and continuing to 11:02 a. m. will be observed generally in stores and factories this year, it has been indicated. This is the only observance in Xenia proper for the morning hours as the American Legion Memorial service is to be held at the O. S. and S. O. Home at 10:30 a. m.

Gaily decorated store fronts with the uniform flag system lining the sidewalks will add a gala atmosphere to the city by the time the parade gets under way at 2:30 p. m. Marching to the doors of the new armory the parade, planned as one of the largest affairs of the nature within the history of Xenia, will disband for the official dedicatory services.

Adjutant General Reynolds of the Ohio National Guard will present the armory to Greene County with State Representative R. D. Williamson accepting it on behalf of the community. "Retreat" will be observed at 5 p. m.

A banquet will be enjoyed at the Masonic Temple at 6 p. m. followed by a grand military ball in the armory starting at 8 and continuing until 12. Tickets for the banquet and the dance are now on sale, and may be obtained from nearly every business house in Xenia.

CHIEF FISHER HURT FIGHTING BLAZE AT CHURCH ST. HOUSE

Removed To Hospital After Falling From Residence Roof

Fire Chief Herman Fisher, 38, is confined in McClellan Hospital with severe injuries suffered in a twenty-two-foot fall from the roof of a two-story dwelling at 232 W. Church St., which was partly destroyed by fire Thursday night.

After firemen had finally subdued the flames about 10:40 o'clock, Chief Fisher, who had been making a final inspection tour of the sloping roof to make certain the blaze was entirely extinguished, was preparing to join his comrades on the ground below when he lost his footing. He landed heavily on his right hip on a flat tin roof one story below and then bounced to the ground. Firemen rushed him to the hospital, where it was ascertained he sustained fractures of the right pelvic bone in three places.

The two-story frame residence, owned by Mrs. Luella Jackson, was occupied by Clarence E. Wilson, painter, and his family, but members of the family had gone to a movie and the house was vacant when the fire broke out in the cellar at 9:15 p. m.

The flames ate their way through the floors and up the partition, burning the roof almost entirely off. Heavy damage was also caused to the interior of the residence and household furnishings due to smoke and water, and it was estimated the loss may be approximately $4,000.

While firemen were fighting the blaze, it was reported that a child was asleep in a bedroom on the second floor. Firemen made their way through the dense smoke to investigate but after a careful inspection of all the rooms found the rumor was without foundation.

Firemen attributed the blaze to burning soap dripping down the flue into the cellar and lighting rubbish or papers.

BELL ACQUIRES CEDARVILLE TELEPHONE COMPANY PROPERTY

The Cedarville telephone system is now being operated by The Ohio Bell Telephone Co.

It was officially taken over at midnight, Friday, October 31, a few days after the Interstate Commerce Commission had granted a joint petition filed by the Ohio Bell and Cedarville Telephone Co. asking permission for purchase by the Ohio Bell of the local telephone property.

XENIAN NAMED ON STATE COMMITTEE

Paul Fuller, commander of Joseph P. Foody Post, American Legion, has been appointed a member of the Forty and Eight state child welfare committee, according to a letter he received this week from Nelson McQuillan, St. Clairsville, O., state chairman of the committee. Russell Cunningham, director of the division of service of the Legion, has called a meeting of the committee in Columbus Sunday at 10 a. m. Mr. Fuller will attend the meeting.

Mr. McQuillan will be in Xenia Saturday to confer with officials of the O. S. and S. O. Home regarding the Thanksgiving party for wards of the Home on November 29.

SEAL SALE STARTS HERE DECEMBER 1

The annual Christmas Seal sale, funds from which are used in the fight against tuberculosis, will begin December 1, it was announced Friday. The Greene County Public Health League will again have charge of the sale this year.

From funds received from the sale of Christmas seals last year, Mrs. Guy-Harold Smith, Columbus, was employed by the League to investigate cases of tuberculosis in Greene County. Two months' investigation by Mrs. Smith disclosed there were sixty-two cases in Xenia and fifty-two cases in Greene County, not including the suspected and contract cases. It is the hope of the League to receive enough funds this year from the sale of the Christmas Health Seals to again employ Mrs. Smith to continue her investigations in the county.

MRS. WITTENMYER WILL HEAD SERVICE COMMITTEE OF POST

Pearl Wittenmyer

A woman has been selected to head the service committee of Joseph P. Foody Post, American Legion, for the first time in the history of the organization. Commander Paul Fuller announced Friday.

Mrs. Pearl Wittenmyer, county health nurse, is the woman to be honored by the veterans organization, being named as chairman of the service committee in recognition of her work during the last year as a member of the child welfare committee of the Legion.

Mrs. Wittenmyer, by virtue of her service as a war nurse, is one of the few women in the county eligible to American Legion membership.

Serving with Mrs. Wittenmyer on the committee will be Loren Shepherd, one of the more active members of the post, who also was honored in the selection because of his activity in various endeavors for the good of the Legion. Fleming M. Dean is the third member of the committee, which will be aided also by the commander, retiring service officer of the post.

The committee will gather every Saturday night at 7 p. m. in the post headquarters in the Court House, remaining in session until 9 p. m. to care for claims of disabled veterans and the multitude of other services offered ex-servicemen through the Legion. It is not necessary for an ex-serviceman to belong to the Legion to avail himself of this service offered, committee members said.

Members of all Parent-Teachers' Association in the city are invited to attend the meeting of McKinley A. at the school auditorium Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in Mrs. L. H. Jones, Yellow Springs, will give an account of national P-T. A. convention in Ever, Colo., in June.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

OPERETTA IS ABLY SUNG BY COMBINED SCHOOL GLEE CLUBS

If you like romantic operettas of the old school, embracing songs pleasing to the ear interpolated with a love story for a central theme, then you were or you would have been delighted with "The Lass of Limerick Town," a romantic comic opera in two acts, interpreted by the combined Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs of Xenia Central High School, at Jean B. Elwell Auditorium Thursday night.

The entire production was under the ever efficient supervision of William Hugh Miller, music director in the Xenia public schools. The cast of fifteen was supplemented by a chorus of villagers and guests.

The story, based on a familiar theme, concerned the fact that St. Charles Worthington, an English squire (Marvin Spahr), had promised his old friend, Donovan McCoy, when the latter was dying, that his son, Pomeroy (Charles Adair), should marry McCoy's daughter, Rose, (Donna Devoe), when the son should come of age.

Any objections the son might have entertained to this arrangement were rendered futile owing to the fact that shortly before the action of the opera begins, Rose McCoy, as the elder of two nieces, had been left a considerable fortune by a rich uncle (there always is a rich uncle in America. Rosa has a cousin Betty, (Naomi Henkle). The two live together in Betty's birthplace, Limerick Town, under the guardianship of Judge Hooley, (Fred Clark). Both girls were born on the same day but Rose is a few hours the elder, and thus inherits the rich uncle's money, while Betty is left with nothing but her looks.

When Captain Pomeroy becomes of age he is sent to fulfill his father's obligation and having a strong sense of duty determines to marry Rose, although he has never seen her, or her cousin either for that matter. Following the time-honored custom the girls exchange identities and there are the usual complications, which finally end happily when it is proven conclusively that it is Betty and not Rose who is the elder of the two cousins and therefore heiress to the fortune.

Others who have principal parts in the production are Mary Davidson as "Lady Worthington," Paul McClellan as "Justin, O'Flynn," Eleanor Collins as "Mrs. O'Flynn," Earl Short as "Ezra Hicks," Robert Randall as "Pat," Oscar Fulkerson as "Mike," Eileen Sayre as "Molly," William Wolf as "Mr. Smith," and Ralph Randall as "Mr. Partington."

Following is the list of musical numbers:

- Act 1
Overture.
Opening Chorus—Lads and Ladies.
Song—Pat—I Am the Landlord.
Chorus—As We Drink to Your Health.
Song—Mike—Molly Mine.
Duet—Judge Hooley and Rose—Tick-Tock.
Song—Rose—Was Ever Fate So Cruel As Mine!
Chorus—Betty is a Darling.
Song—Betty and Chorus—Betty McCoy.
Duet—Betty and Rose—Wealth and Poverty.
Quintet—Betty Rose, Mrs. O'Flynn, Justin and Judge Hooley—Hiddle-diddle, Oh! Here is a Riddle.
Trio—Judge Hooley, Justin and Mrs. O'Flynn—What Fun.
Song—Captain Worthington—Ireland Dear, My Heart's for You.
Chorus—Watch Him Greet His Bride-to-be.
Duet—Captain Worthington and Betty—Your Eyes Are Bright.
Finale Act I—Oh, Mr. Flynn.

OPERETTA IS ABLY
SUNG BY COMBINED
SCHOOL GLEE CLUBS

If you like romantic operettas of the old school, embracing songs pleasing to the ear interpolated with a love story for a central theme, then you were or you would have been delighted with "The Lass of Limerick Town," a romantic comic opera in two acts, interpreted by the combined Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs of Xenia Central High School, at Jean B. Elwell Auditorium Thursday night.

The entire production was under the ever efficient supervision of William Hugh Miller, music director in the Xenia public schools. The cast of fifteen was supplemented by a chorus of villagers and guests.

The story, based on a familiar theme, concerned the fact St. Charles Worthington, an English squire (Marvin Spahr), had promised his old friend, Donovan McCoy, when the latter was dying, that his son, Pomeroy (Charles Adair), should marry McCoy's daughter, Rose, (Donna Devoe), when the son should come of age.

Any objections the son might have entertained to this arrangement were rendered futile owing to the fact that shortly before the action of the opera begins, Rose McCoy, as the elder of two nieces, had been left a considerable fortune by a rich uncle (there always is a rich uncle) in America. Rosa has a cousin Betty, (Naomi Henkle). The two live together in Betty's birthplace, Limerick Town, under the guardianship of Judge Hooley, (Fred Clark). Both girls were born on the same day but Rose is a few hours the elder, and thus inherits the rich uncle's money, while Betty is left with nothing but her looks.

When Captain Pomeroy becomes of age he is sent to fulfill his father's obligation and having a strong sense of duty determines to marry Rose, although he has never seen her, or her cousin either for that matter. Following the time-honored custom the girls exchange identities and there are the usual complications, which finally end happily when it is proven conclusively that it is Betty and not Rose who is the elder of the two cousins and therefore heiress to the fortune.

Others who have principal parts in the production are Mary Davidson as "Lady Worthington," Paul McChellan as "Justin O'Flynn," Eleanor Collins as "Mrs. O'Flynn," Earl Short as "Ezra Hicks," Robert Randall as "Pat," Oscar Fulker as "Mike," Eileen Sayre as "Molly," William Wolf as "Mr. Smith," and Ralph Randall as "Mr. Partington."

Following is the list of musical numbers:

Act 1
Overture.
Opening Chorus—Lads and Ladies.
Song—Pat—I Am the Landlord.
Chorus—As We Drink to Your Health.
Song—Mike—Molly Mine.
Duet—Judge Hooley and Rose—Tick-Tock.
Song—Rose—Was Ever Fate So Cruel As Mine!
Chorus—Betty is a Darling.
Song—Betty and Chorus—Betty McGoy.
Duet—Betty and Rose—Wealth and Poverty.
Quintet—Betty Rose, Mrs. O'Flynn, Justin and Judge Hooley—Hiddle-diddle, Oh! Here is a Riddle.
Trio—Judge Hooley, Justin and Mrs. O'Flynn—What Fun.
Song—Capt. Worthington—Ireland Dear, My Heart's for You.
Chorus—Watch Him Greet His Bride-to-be.
Duet—Capt. (Worthington and Betty—Your Eyes Are Bright.
Finale Act I—Oh, Mr. Flynn.

PROSPERITY'S LEVEL

Although prosperity may be expected to return some time during the approaching winter, a lifetime is likely to elapse before this country again experiences years as fat as those through which it has just passed, according to Dr. David Friday, well known economist and statistician, who once held the chair of political economy at Ann Arbor. A lower price level will probably prevail for years to come but many classes of people will be happier, Dr. Friday thinks, because their money will go further.

Other students of the situation have come to much the same conclusion. They speak of the crash a year ago as the last kick of war prosperity and economic hysteria in this country. The death rattle sounded on the floor of the stock exchanges and the bull market flattened out. When the obsequies are over, we shall be headed toward a new normality more in keeping with the needs of our domestic and foreign markets, as qualified by the increasing disposition and capacity of foreign countries to supply their own demand for goods with which heretofore we have provided them.

The theory is interesting—and not without a promise of consolation. All such liquidations, as that which had inevitably to follow our wartime economic inflation, are financially disastrous to some people; but the even tenor which they restore to the economic life of the country eventually brings greater comfort to a larger number. The size of the dollar is not so important as the distance it will go to procure the necessities and luxuries of life. A proper adjustment of wages and prices on a lower level has one advantage over attempting to balance them on the beetling heights to which the war dragged them: They are less exposed to sudden and radical dislocation.

Adversity has its chastening merits. We have learned that things can't forever go up, without eventually coming down. We have learned that there is such a thing as a saturation point; and that our war-inflated capacity to produce had to be deflated to bring it again abreast of our capacity to consume. With those lessons learned, we are in a fundamentally sounder frame of mind in which to look to the future with confidence than we have been at any time since the World War turned the international economic structure upside down.

TEACHING TRUE PATRIOTISM

W. B. Curry, head master of the Oak Lane Country Day schools, Philadelphia, says: "The worthwhile part of patriotism consists of a sense of responsibility for his fellows and a willingness to do something to enrich the life of the community to which he belongs. This can only be promoted indirectly at school by creating an environment in which children naturally develop a sense of responsibility by the practice of it and not by the means of exhortation."

The natural desire which children seem to have for hero worship can be satisfied by telling them of those men who have promoted human knowledge and welfare. Explorers and geographers particularly make an appeal to young children; it is important in this connection that the great men whom they are taught to respect should not belong only to their own country."

It might help a little if the law were administered more severely where people are shot "by mistake." A bullet hurts just as much if it is a "stray" as it does if it is aimed deliberately.

Hugh Walpole has named the "only six books in the world worthy to be called literature." Hugh must have been a busy boy if he has read all the books in the world.

The best thing to do with the cigarette tax proposal is to let it go up in smoke.

MEN ARE THE MYSTERIOUS ONES

Are women mysterious? That's a joke. That's old stuff. They used to be, but they aren't any more. The MEN are the mysterious ones now—and everybody knows it. The women were mysterious back in the days when men didn't know what they were thinking. But now everybody knows what they're thinking.

They talk right out in meeting. They say what they want to SAY. And if they can get away with it they do what they want to DO. They get jobs and they fill them capably. And if they marry and have children, they still aren't the old-fashioned wives they used to be.

They talk about the men. Of course, they ALWAYS talked about the men—when the men weren't there—but now they talk about the men when the men are present—and uncomfortable—and laughing hollowly—and getting red ears from embarrassment.

They talk about the men just as the men used to talk about the women. And they talk to the men in that same condescending, of-course-you-don't-understand, pet-kitten way the men once used in talking to women.

They say the most astounding things. That's what the women are doing.

And, of course, the men pretend to like it. They SAY they do. They say: "Isn't it swell that the women are emancipated, that our daughters and mothers and sisters and wives are like this—so modern and independent and refreshingly natural. They used to repress themselves, now they EXPRESS themselves. Isn't it fine?"

Yes... isn't it? THE LIARS.

The FAKERS! They don't mean a word they say. They feel cheated. They don't want women to be their "equals." They don't really want to see women doing these things, saying those things, being "modern." They want them to be like "the girl that married dear old dad." But they DON'T DARE TO SAY IT! They know what would happen. They can imagine the peals of laughter—the howls, the chuckles, the unladylike display of amusement.

They don't dare say that, so what do they DO—the cowards?

They keep STILL. They become MYSTERIOUS. They say one thing and think another, just as the women did. They say things about the women that they don't say when they're around. They think one thing and do the opposite. They're all muddled and rebellious just as the women were. They're messes—they're MYSTERIOUS!

And here I stand... all defenseless... with one garter hanging down... saying what I shouldn't say... and the odds are ten to one I can't find ONE man in all this town who'll back me up and admit I'm telling the truth.

THE QUESTION BOX

Central Press Wash. Bureau

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions, nor will the estimated value of old coins be given.

What was the McNary-Haugen bill?

The McNary-Haugen bill was a measure designed to benefit the farmer, raising the prices of farm products at home while the same American products would be sold cheaply abroad. The bill, passed by the house of representatives Feb. 17, 1927, was vetoed by President Coolidge Feb. 25, of that year. In rejecting the bill the president found it unworkable, unconstitutional, price-fixing, "sectionally discriminating, imposing additional burdens upon the majority of farmers while of doubtful helpfulness to the minority.

Scholarship

How are the boys who compete for the Edison scholarship selected from each state?

Boys competing for the Edison scholarship are selected by competitive examinations held in each state which sends a representative.

Pronunciation

What is the correct pronunciation of the name Cedric?

The name is pronounced preferably as though it were spelled Sedrick. It is sometimes given as though it were spelled Kedrick, however.

Kiosk

The weather bureau in our city has a small building which houses a barometer and a thermometer. I say that the building is called a kiosk, another person declares the name applies to the weather recording instrument. Which is right? The building would be called a kiosk, not the instrument.

Capital Punishment

What states do not have capital punishment?

The states of Kansas, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota, Rhode Island, South Dakota and Wisconsin do not have capital punishment laws. In each of these states the penalty for murder is life imprisonment.

John Doe

Is a John Doe search warrant legal? Is it forbidden by the Fourth amendment to the Constitution?

A John Doe search warrant is legal, provided it describes the place to be searched and the persons or things to be seized. The Fourth amendment to the Constitution states that the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated and no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation and particularly describing the place to be searched and the persons or things to be seized.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—Every once in a while modernism gets a sock on the button.

Old time glass kerosene lamps that still do duty in some agricultural sections of the country are being equipped with electric attachments, weird chromatic shades, and are on display at bughouse prices at many of the gift shops on the Avenue de la Quince.

ON THEIR TOES

Newspapers in New York are one jump ahead of the monthly magazines that issue their Christmas numbers around Thanksgiving time.

At 8:30 o'clock at night on Broadway you can buy tomorrow morning's newspaper; and at a corresponding hour in the morning the first "evening editions" appear on the streets.

THAT'S SERVICE

Herman Levy, formerly of the vicinity of Oliver Street—and the list of geniuses that remarkable neighborhood has turned out is apparently inexhaustible—is the proprietor of the most interesting skyscraper in Tammany Town.

It's a twenty-four-story structure to be built on Sixth Avenue, opposite Bryant Park at 41st Street, equipped from top to bottom with social, industrial and commercial appliances for the comfort and convenience of tenants.

The first floor is to be provided with a luxurious waiting room for visitors, with telephone operators to care for messages of tenants; information clerks to expedite appointments; and an intricate wire system whereby messengers and stenographers will be made available any hour of the night or day.

A modern restaurant with a cafeteria service is to be installed, a barber shop, a place to have the old union eased, a dentist, a doctor, an osteopath and a shower bath. The rent includes office equipment, light, heat, towels, ice water and porter service. About the only thing Brother Levy has forgotten to install is a chapel where the business man may repair a few minutes each day for meditation and prayer.

OLD FAITHFUL!

PRINCE OF WALES SEES CHANCE OF TRADE BOOM BY CALLING ON BRAZIL

WASHINGTON.—The Prince of Wales was going to visit Argentina shortly, anyway. Now he is arranging to visit Brazil on the same trip, according to London cables.

Wales does most of his visiting where trade looks promising to English exporters. He seems to have had his eye on the Argentines for several years. The Argentines never have liked the United States overly well. Nevertheless, we horned into their markets just after the war, when England's industries were too badly disorganized to meet their requirements. The prince evidently considers the time ripe today to recover this business.

But Brazil appears to have been an afterthought with him.

The royal traveling man's reason for revising his South American plans is not a problem, however, to puzzle trade experts for long. One guess is as many as they are likely to ask for.

It happened so recently that few persons can have forgotten already how boldly the state department staked its diplomatic judgment on President Washington Luis' government, at Rio de Janeiro, the capital, to suppress the Brazilian rebellion—or how effectively the rebels suppressed President Luis, less than two days later, the erstwhile rebels thus becoming the government, and Senior Luis an ex-president, with a can tied to his coat-tails.

Possibly this error on Secretary Stimson's part will not prejudice the new Brazilian regime against Americans in general, but the Prince of Wales' alteration of his itinerary hints that he hopes it will.

Brazil and Argentina are South America's two richest republics—hence the best worth having, as customers.

Post-war competition for their markets has been principally between the United States and Great Britain. The Germans have been regaining considerable of their pre-1914 trade, but Uncle Sam and John Bull had a long lead on them.

And Uncle Sam had a long lead on John Bull.

There is a sound commercial explanation for America's advantage in Brazil; not so much so as to Argentina.

The Argentines are an agricultural and pastoral, not an industrial people. Their chief products are wheat and corn, beef, mutton and pork, hides and wool. These products are products of ours also—not as exclusively so as they are Argentina's, but sufficiently important to lead us to protect them with a high tariff wall, making it impossible for the Argentines to sell much of anything to us; we need scarcely any of the stuff they have to offer. Since we do not buy from them they naturally are not enthusiastic buyers from us. They do not buy large quantities of our manufactures, but they would rather buy from customers of their own, if possible.

Such is the Argentine situation which the English, with their factories again in first-class running order, obviously mean to try to turn to their own account—cutting in on us, necessarily.

Brazil differs from Argentina in being a country principally of tropical products—notably coffee, which the United States has to import or do without.

Consequently, what the Brazilians need and buy from us, they can pay for in commodities that we need and have to get from them.

Indeed, they sell more in the United States than we sell in Brazil.

It follows, of course, like 1, 2, 3, that it pays the Brazilians to deal with us. Almost alone among Latin American peoples (a majority of whom have had spells of extreme resentment and suspicion of the colossus of the north) they have been consistently friendly toward Uncle Sam—because he always has been so good a customer.

Uncle Sam is caught in a ridiculous fix and the Prince of Wales plainly intends to make the most of it.

It is not a friendship that will be permanently disrupted, either. The state department and the Prince of Wales, working their hardest, in conjunction with one another, cannot disrupt it permanently—not even with dynamite.

Brazil cannot afford to have it disrupted.

For all that, it is clear that Wales fancies he sees an opportunity to annex more or less trade for his countrymen, at American exporters' expense, while Brazilian sensibilities are still smarting from the state department's recent blunder, as between President (now ex-President) Luis and the rebels (now the government).

While it is needless for us to lose sleep concerning Brazil, it is a fact that European enterprise probably will make a sizable amount of capital out of Secretary Stimson's inaccuracy as a forecaster, elsewhere throughout Latin America.

The Latin Americans' chronic complaint of Uncle Sam is that his representatives almost never correctly estimate the trend of events (or anything else) in the republics equidistant from him and beyond—and Secretary Stimson's Brazilian faux pas was so promptly demonstrated that no chance was allowed him, even for a graceful crawlback movement.

To summarize—

Uncle Sam is caught in a ridiculous fix and the Prince of Wales plainly intends to make the most of it.

Avoid Fondling Parrot

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Much has been written of parrot disease in the past year. A great deal of it has consisted of rather vague and, at times, hysterical accounts. We have at last an authoritative account of an epidemic occurring at the Hygienic laboratory in Washington.

The disease is not a new discovery. It has been known since 1879. The first described epidemic was in Switzerland. Three weeks after the arrival of a shipment of parrots into the little town of Uster, Switzerland, the disease broke out. Seven people were afflicted and three died.

The present epidemic seems to have started about two years ago in Philadelphia. The first patient had received an African parrot in July, 1928. The bird appeared to have a cold. The patient nursed it, allowed it to take food from her mouth, and fondled and kissed it.

It is easy enough to see how the disease could be transmitted in that way. In August the patient was taken sick with a severe of headache and fever. Symptoms of pneumonia or influenza developed, with abdominal distention—the typical picture of the disease. She recovered.

In the epidemic at the Hygienic laboratories, the disease made its appearance among the research workers or bacteriologists engaged in studying the disease. The infections were not due to handling infected parrots or parakeets. Of seven cases reported, one patient died.

The cause of the disease is a germ, the Bacillus psittacosis, first described in 1893. The symptom in the infected birds are discharge from the nose, and general depression. In the recent epidemic of the birds came from America. Cases were seen in Cuba, Argentina, in July, this city is a center for the parrot and parakeet trade.

If the owner fondles on these sick birds, the disease is likely to appear in about eight or ten days. It may start with a cold and aches, followed by definite signs of pneumonia, intestinal disturbance. The last lasts about a month or six weeks. Relapses occur. It does not seem to be contagious from man to man.

Treatment of various kinds seemed to have little or no effect on the condition. A serum prepared and used in some cases originating at the Hygienic laboratory, but without much success.

The lesson is obvious—no handle, and especially kiss, sick pet parrot. Few animal cases are transmitted to man, ever, and few human diseases are given to animals. Tuberculosis is a notable exception.

EDITOR'S NOTE: A pamphlet, "Instructions for Treatment of Diabetes," by Clendenning, can be obtained sending 10 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Logan Clendenning, 1435 E. street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlet on "Hygiene of Work" also is available for 10 cents.

Vanity Causes Flirtation

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"Dear Virginia Lee: I have been married ten years. Am 29 and my husband is 30, old enough to have good sense. But not so.

"He flirts with anybody who looks at him. We don't go down town any more because all we do is fuss, and I cannot stand it. If we have a girl friend in our home he sits and looks in her eyes. I want to know why he does that. He says he doesn't when I have seen him do it.

"Have two boys and a home, but it's not worth keeping together. I like to be loved, and the love he should give me he puts on them. I am not to pay any attention to them, but it gets hold of me. He never comes home from work like he should, most always half an hour late. I have no one to go to. Mother and father are dead.

"Just Jealous!" I'm glad you wrote me, and hope you will follow my advice, and that I am not to pay any attention to them, but it gets hold of me. I judge you have a phobia on the subject of your husband flirting—a jealous complex.

In the first place, if he does flirt with every woman he meets, you are going just the way to make him do it all the more. I know it is dreadfully hard not to notice when a person you love is making a fuss over someone else, but console yourself with this thought: That it is nothing but vanity that prompts folk to look into the eyes of anyone who is foolish enough to respond to them. They haven't any real feeling for that person, but it flatters their vanity to think of themselves as a devil of a person with the opposite sex. They don't know that to often the person who plays up to them and flirts with them out of their own vanity, they are going just the way to make him do it all the more. PROSPERITY'S LEVEL

Although prosperity may be expected to return some time during the approaching winter, a lifetime is likely to elapse before this country again experiences years as fat as those through which it has just passed, according to Dr. David Friday, well known economist and statistician, who once held the chair of political economy at Ann Arbor. A lower price level will probably prevail for years to come but many classes of people will be happier, Dr. Friday thinks, because their money will go further.

Other students of the situation have come to much the same conclusion. They speak of the crash a year ago as the last kick of war prosperity and economic hysteria in this country. The death rattle sounded on the floor of the stock exchanges and the bull market flattened out. When the obsequies are over, we shall be headed toward a new normality more in keeping with the needs of our domestic and foreign markets, as qualified by the increasing disposition and capacity of foreign countries to supply their own demand for goods with which heretofore we have provided them.

The theory is interesting—and not without a promise of consolation. All such liquidations, as that which had inevitably to follow our wartime economic inflation, are financially disastrous to some people; but the even tenor which they restore to the economic life of the country eventually brings greater comfort to a larger number. The size of the dollar is not so important as the distance it will go to procure the necessities and luxuries of life. A proper adjustment of wages and prices on a lower level has one advantage over attempting to balance them on the beetling heights to which the war dragged them: They are less exposed to sudden and radical dislocation.

Adversity has its chastening merits. We have learned that things can't forever go up, without eventually coming down. We have learned that there is such a thing as a saturation point; and that our war inflated capacity to produce had to be deflated to bring it again abreast of our capacity to consume. With those lessons learned, we are in a fundamentally sounder frame of mind in which to look to the future with confidence than we have been at any time since the World War turned the international economic structure upside down.

TEACHING TRUE PATRIOTISM

W. B. Curry, head master of the Oak Lane Country Day schools, Philadelphia, says: "The worthwhile part of patriotism consists of a sense of responsibility for his fellows and a willingness to do something to enrich the life of the community to which he belongs. This can only be promoted indirectly at school by creating an environment in which children naturally develop a sense of responsibility by the practice of it and not by the means of exhortation."

The natural desire which children seem to have for hero worship can be satisfied by telling them of those men who have promoted human knowledge and welfare. Explorers and geographers particularly make an appeal to young children; it is important in this connection that the great men whom they are taught to respect should not belong only to their own country."

It might help a little if the law were administered more severely where people are shot "by mistake." A bullet hurts just as much if it is a "stray" as it does if it is aimed deliberately.

Hugh Walpole has named the "only six books in the world worthy to be called literature." Hugh must have been a busy boy if he has read all the books in the world.

MEN ARE THE MYSTERIOUS ONES

Are women mysterious?
That's a joke.
That's old stuff.
They used to be, but they aren't any more. The MEN are the mysterious ones now—and everybody knows it.

The women were mysterious back in the days when men didn't know what they were thinking. But now everybody knows what they're thinking.

They talk right out in meeting. They say what they want to SAY. And if they can get away with it they do what they want to DO. They get jobs and they fill them capably. And if they marry and have children, they still aren't the old-fashioned wives they used to be.

They talk about the men. Of course, they ALWAYS talked about the men—when the men weren't there—but now they talk about the men when the men are present—and uncomfortable—and laughing hollowly—and getting red ears from embarrassment.

They talk about the men just as the men used to talk about the women. And they talk to the men in that same condescending, of-course-you-don't-understand, pet-kitten way the men once used in talking to women.

They say the most astounding things. That's what the women are doing.

And, of course, the men pretend to like it. They SAY they do.

They say: "Isn't it swell that the women are emancipated, that our daughters and mothers and sisters and wives are like this—so modern and independent and refreshingly natural. They used to repress themselves, now they EXPRESS themselves. Isn't it fine?"

Yes . . . isn't it? THE LIARS.

The FAKERS! They don't mean a word they say. They feel cheated. They don't want women to be their "equals." They don't really want to let women doing these things, saying those things, being "modern." They want them to be like "the girl that married dear old dad." But they DON'T DARE TO SAY IT! They know what would happen. They can imagine the peals of laughter—the howls, the chuckles, the unladylike display of amusement.

They don't dare say that, so what do they DO—the cowards?

They keep STILL. They become MYSTERIOUS. They say one thing and think another, just as the women did. They say things about the women that they don't say when they're around. They think one thing and do the opposite. They're all muddled and rebellious just as the women were. They're messes—their MYSTERIOUS!

And here I stand . . . all defenseless . . . with one garment hanging down . . . saying what I shouldn't say . . . and the odds are ten to one I can't find ONE man in all this town who'll back me up and admit I'm telling the truth.

THE QUESTION BOX

Central Press Wash Bureau

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions, nor will the estimated value of old coins be given.

What was the McNary-Haugen bill?

The McNary-Haugen bill was a measure designed to benefit the farmer, raising the prices of farm products at home while the same American products would be sold cheaply abroad. The bill, passed by the house of representatives Feb. 17, 1927, was vetoed by President Coolidge Feb. 25, of that year. In rejecting the bill the president found it unworkable, unconstitutional, price-fixing, sectionally discriminating, imposing additional burdens upon the majority of farmers while of doubtful helpfulness to the minority.

Scholarship

How are the boys who compete for the Edison scholarship selected from each state?

Boys competing for the Edison scholarship are selected by competitive examinations held in each state which sends a representative.

Pronunciation

What is the correct pronunciation of the name Cedric?

The name is pronounced preferably as though it were spelled Sedrick. It is sometimes given as though it were spelled Kedrick, however.

Kiosk

The weather bureau in our city has a small building which houses a barometer and a thermometer. I say that the building is called a kiosk, another person declares the name applies to the weather recording instrument. Which is right? The building would be called a kiosk, not the instrument.

Capital Punishment

What states do not have capital punishment?

The states of Kansas, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota, Rhode Island, South Dakota and Wisconsin do not have capital punishment laws. In each of these states the penalty for murder is life imprisonment.

John Doe

Is a John Doe search warrant legal? Is it forbidden by the Fourth amendment to the Constitution?

A John Doe search warrant is legal, provided it describes the place to be searched and the persons or things to be seized. The Fourth amendment to the Constitution states that the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated and no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation and particularly describing the place to be searched and the persons or things to be seized.

Bo-Broadway

—By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE—

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—Every once in a while modernism gets a sock on the button.

Old time glass kerosene lamps that still do duty in some agricultural sections of the country are being equipped with electric attachments, weird chromatic shades, and are on display at bughouse prices at many of the gift shops on the Avenue de la Quince.

ON THEIR TOES

Newspapers in New York are one jump ahead of the monthly magazines that issue their Christmas numbers around Thanksgiving time.

At 8:30 o'clock at night on Broadway you can buy tomorrow morning's newspaper; and at a corresponding hour in the morning the first "evening editions" appear on the streets.

THAT'S SERVICE

Herman Levy, formerly of the vicinity of Oliver Street—and the line of gentlemen that remarkable neighborhood has turned out to be apparently inexhaustible—is the projector of the most interesting skyscraper in Tammany Town.

It's a twenty-four-story structure to be built on Sixth Avenue, opposite Bryant Park at 41st Street, equipped from top to bottom with social, industrial and commercial appurtenances for the comfort and convenience of tenants.

The first floor is to be provided with a luxurious waiting room for visitors, with telephone operators to care for messages of tenants; information clerks to expedite appointments and an intricate wire system whereby messengers and stenographers will be made available any hour of the night or day.

A modern restaurant with a cafeteria service is to be installed, a barber shop, a place to have the old bunion eased, a dentist, a doctor, an osteopath and a shower baths. The rent includes office equipment, light, heat, towels, hot water and porter service. About the only thing Brother Levy has forgotten to install is a chapel where the business man may repair a few minutes each day for meditation and prayer.

OLD FAITHFUL!

PRINCE OF WALES SEES CHANCE OF TRADE BOOM BY CALLING ON BRAZIL

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

WASHINGTON.—The Prince of Wales was going to visit Argentina shortly, anyway. Now he is arranging to visit Brazil on the same trip, according to London cables.

Wales does most of his visiting where trade looks promising to English exporters.

He seems to have had his eye on the Argentine for several years. The Argentine never have liked the United States overly well. Nevertheless, we horned into their markets just after the war, when England's industries were too badly disorganized to meet their requirements. The prince evidently considers the time ripe today to recover this business.

But Brazil appears to have been an afterthought with him.

The royal traveling man's reason for revising his South American plans is not a problem, however, to puzzle trade experts for long. One guess is as many as they are likely to ask for.

It happened so recently that few persons can have forgotten already how boldly the state department staked its diplomatic judgment on President Washington Luis' government, at Rio de Janeiro, the capital, to suppress the Brazilian rebellion—or how effectively the rebels suppressed President Luis, less than two days later, the erstwhile rebels thus becoming the government, and Senior Luis an ex-president, with a can tied to his coat-tails.

Possibly this error on Secretary Stimson's part will not prejudice the new Brazilian regime against Americans in general, but the Prince of Wales' alteration of his itinerary hints that he hopes it will.

Brazil and Argentina are South America's two richest republics—hence the best worth having, as customers.

Post-war competition for their markets has been principally between the United States and Great Britain. The Germans have been regaining considerable of their pre-1914 trade, but Uncle Sam and John Bull had a long lead on them.

And Uncle Sam had a long lead on John Bull.

There is a sound commercial explanation for America's advantage in Brazil; not so much so as to Argentina.

The Argentines are an agricultural and pastoral, not an industrial people.

Their chief products are wheat and corn, beef, mutton and pork, hides and wool. These products are products of ours also—not as exclusively so as they are Argentine, but sufficiently important to lead us to protect them with a high tariff wall, making it impossible for the Argentines to sell much of anything to us; we need scarcely any of the stuff they have to offer. Since we do not buy from them they naturally are not enthusiastic buyers from us.

They do not buy large quantities of our manufactures, but they would rather buy from customers of their own, if possible.

Such is the Argentine situation which the English, with their factories again in first-class running order, obviously mean to try to turn to their own account—cutting in on us, necessarily.

Brazil differs from Argentina in being a country principally of tropical products—notably coffee, which the United States has to import or do without.

Consequently, what the Brazilians need and buy from us, they can pay for in commodities that we need and have to get from them.

Indeed, they sell more in the United States than we sell in Brazil.

It follows, of course, like 1, 2, 3, that it pays the Brazilians to deal with us. Almost alone among Latin American peoples (a majority of whom have had spells of extreme resentment and suspicion of the colossus of the north) they have been consistently friendly toward Uncle Samuel—because he always has been so good a customer.

It is not a friendship that will be permanently disrupted, either. The state department and the Prince of Wales, working their hardest, in conjunction with one another, cannot disrupt it permanently—not even with dynamite. Brazil cannot afford to have it disrupted.

For all that, it is clear that Wales fancies he sees an opportunity to annex more or less trade for his countrymen, at American exporters' expense, while Brazilian sensibilities are still smarting from the state department's recent blunder, as between President (now ex-President) Luis and the rebels (now the government).

While it is needless for us to lose sleep concerning Brazil, it is a fact that European enterprise probably will make a sizable amount of capital out of Secretary Stimson's inaccuracy as a fore-

Peter's Adventures

—By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent—

LOYAL TO THE LAST

THE RED ANTS were winning! The bad news made Peter's blood run cold. But he wasn't going to let the wounded Black Ant know how scared he was. He leaned over the poor little insect, and spoke to her gently.

"I'll run back to the Ant Hill and deliver your message. Don't you worry! Busy will see that the nurses and babies get away safely. But before I go, isn't there something I can do for you?" To the boy's great surprise, the wounded Black Ant flew into a fury.

"Don't you know better than to ask a question like that?" demanded she. "Have you been even a short while among my people and failed to learn that a single ant doesn't count for anything at all when there's the whole community to be considered? My days of usefulness are over. My time has come to leave this old, bright world" (the poor ant's voice sounded choked), "but that is fate. Your duty is to the young of Ant Hill who have not lived their lives. My duty is to let you go. Hurry, sluggard! Be off. Stop bandying words with me!"

The wounded Black Ant's frantic efforts to drive the boy away from her side took all her strength. With one last feeble motion of her antennae toward the Ant Hill home she had loved so well, and to the very end, the little warrior suddenly sighed and turned her face to the ground.

"Good-bye, little Ant," said Peter, softly. "What a loyal warrior you were. Now I must start where you left off and carry on your scout work!"

Next: "Up Look-Out Hill."

caster, elsewhere throughout Latin America.

The Latin Americans' chronic complaint of Uncle Sam is that his representatives almost never correctly estimate the trend of events (or anything else) in the republics equatorward from him and beyond—and Secretary Stimson's Brazilian faux pas was so promptly demonstrated that no chance was allowed him, even for a graceful crawfish movement.

To summarize—Uncle Sam is caught in a ridiculous fix and the Prince of Wales plainly intends to make the most of it.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

—By MRS. MARY MORTON—

MENU HINT

Broiled Lamb Chops
Baked Potatoes
Celery and Brussels Sprouts
Molded Tomato Salad

Brown Betty Coffee or Tea

Some meat with plenty of vegetables, part of them raw, some sweets and starches, are considered a balanced meal for the person who is in good health. The cooked vegetables are plentifully supplied in this menu. For the raw ones the salad is served on a generous bed of lettuce of shredded cabbage, or any other crisp green vegetable.

Today's Recipes

Celery and Brussels Sprouts.—One quart Brussels sprouts cooked until tender and drain. One and one-half cups celery cut in one-inch pieces, cooked three minutes in three tablespoons butter, add three level tablespoons flour, stir until smooth, add one and one-half cups scalding milk. Mix with sprouts in a baking dish, cover with baking dish, crumbs and bake until sauce bubbles and crumbs are brown.

Brown Betty.—Two tablespoons fat, two cups soft bread crumbs, two and one-half cups apples or dried cooked fruit, one cup corn syrup, one-half orange (juice and grated rind), one-half cup water or fruit juice. Melt fat and stir in bread crumbs. Add flavoring and syrup. Place alternate layers of apples and bread mixture in an oiled baking dish, making the last layer of crumbs. Bake one hour. Serve with whole milk.

Suggestions

Make Winter Conserves
To eke out your store of summer canned fruits don't forget that delicious jams and marmalades can be made during the winter months with dried fruits such as prunes and apricots.

Hooked Tape

What is more exasperating than to find at the last minute that the drawing in a slip or chemise has slipped back out of reach? Keep a fine crochet hook in your dresser drawer with which to catch the fleeing tape.

HOT HAM SANDWICHES

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)—Force one pound cooked ham through the food chopper. Add four tablespoons cream butter, one teaspoon prepared mustard, if not for children add one teaspoon paprika. Mix all together well. Spread on bread, cut in finger strips, and toast, or dip in beaten egg diluted with milk and saute in butter.

Avoid Fondling Parrot

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Much has been written of parrot disease in the past year. A great deal of it has consisted of rather vague and, at times, hysterical accounts. We have at last an authoritative account of an epidemic occurring at the Hygienic laboratory in Washington.

The disease is not a new discovery. It has been known since 1879. The first described epidemic was in Switzerland. Three weeks after the arrival of a shipment of parrots into the little town of Uster, Switzerland, the disease broke out. Seven people were afflicted and three died.

The present epidemic seems to have started about two years ago in Philadelphia. The first patient had received an African parrot in July, 1928. The bird appeared to have a cold. The patient nursed it, allowed it to take food from her mouth and fondled and kissed it. It is easy enough to see how the disease could be transmitted in that way. In August the patient was taken sick with a severe headache and fever. Symptoms of pneumonia or influenza developed, with abdominal distention—the typical picture of the disease. She recovered.

In the epidemic at the Hygienic laboratories, the disease made its appearance among the research workers or bacteriologists engaged in studying the disease. The infections were not due to handling infected parrots or parakeets. Of seven cases reported, one patient died.

The cause of the disease is a germ, the Bacillus psittacosis, first described in 1893. The symbol in the infected birds are disc from the nose, and general distress. In the recent epidemic of the birds came from America. Cases were seen in doba, Argentina, in July. This city is a center for the parakeet trade.

If the owner fondles on these sick birds the disease is likely to appear in about eight days. It may start with a cold and achy feelings, followed by definite signs of pneumonia. Intestinal disturbance or six to eight days about a month later. Relapses occur. It does not seem to be contagious from man to man.

Treatment of various kinds seemed to have little or no effect on the condition. A serum prepared and used in some cases originating at the Hygienic laboratory, but without much success.

The lesson is obvious—no handle, and especially kiss, sick pet parrot. Few animal cases are transmitted to man, ever, and few human diseases be given to animals. Tuberculosis is a notable exception.

Vanity Causes Flirtation

—By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE—

"Dear Virginia Lee: I have been married ten years. Am 29 and my husband is 30, old enough to have good sense. But not so.

"He flirts with anybody who looks at him. We don't go down town any more because all we do is fuss, and I cannot stand it. If we have a girl friend in our home he sits and looks in her eyes. I want to know why he does that. He says he doesn't when I have seen him do it.

"Have two boys and a home, but it's not worth keeping together. I like to be loved, and the love he should give me he puts on them. I try not to pay any attention to them, but it gets hold of me. He never comes home from work like he should, most always half an hour late. I have no one to go to. Mother and father are dead.

"Just Jealous."

I'm glad you wrote me, and hope you will follow my advice, and that is to snap out of it. I may be mistaken about you, but from your letter I judge you have a phobia on the subject of your husband flirting—a jealousy complex.

In the first place, if he does flirt with every woman he meets, you are going just the way to make him do it all the more. I know it is dreadfully hard not to notice when a person you love is making a fuss over someone else, but console yourself with this thought: That it is nothing but vanity that prompts folk to look into the eyes of anyone who is foolish enough to respond to them. They haven't any real feeling for that person, but it flatters their vanity to think of themselves as a devil of a person with the opposite sex. They don't know that often the person who plays up to them and flirts with them outrageously laughs heartily at them behind their back.

The only way to treat such persons is to ridicule them. If they know you think it is a joke and that they look ridiculous they are apt to stop, for no one likes to think he is making a fool of himself.

One final word: If you want to be happy and keep your husband, so little difference that I wish you have taken the trouble to read it. I certainly would tell the truth. You probably will be married until he is of age—21 you.

As to your children, it makes the slightest difference to them whether their father is bit younger or a great deal than their mother—or vice versa.

Wear Comfortable Shoes

—By GLADYS GLAD—

"Dear Miss Glad: A few weeks ago, you told a Miss T. E. W. that her pedal defects were occasioned by the wearing of too short and too tight shoes. I've always demanded that my shoes be as comfortable as bedroom slippers. To insure such comfort, I usually purchase shoes that are at least half a size larger than my feet require. Lately, however, I've been getting pains under the balls of my feet. Since I wear shoes that are sufficiently large, I cannot understand the condition. Can you diagnose my case also?"

"Puzzled."

Shoes that are too large are just as harmful to foot health as shoes that are too small. Your shoes should be long enough and wide enough to allow the foot to function normally. They should be roomy over the toes and should fit snugly around the heel and over the instep. When too large shoes are worn, the wearer often cramps the muscles of the feet in an attempt to keep the shoes from slipping. Moreover, the feet tend to spread, and the arches become weakened and break down. If you cannot afford to purchase new shoes when your old ones become stretched out of shape, buy a pair of inner soles. They will make your shoes fit more snugly and will alleviate the cramping of the muscles. In your particular case, I think that the anterior arches of your feet have become flattened. I would advise you to have the condition treated by a competent chiropodist as soon as possible.

"Dear Miss Glad: My eye are rather sparse and thin. I, over, they haven't any gloss, always look ruffled and untidy being using Brillantine on every day. Is this an advantage?"

It is not advisable to put concoctions as Brillantine or browns every day. A lotion of sort may clog the minute around the hair follicles, and their ability to throw off the ural oil they exude. Brush eyebrows every night with a eyebrow brush. The brushing distribute the natural oil over the hairs, giving them a gloss. Moreover, it will make hairs more tractable and them to lie close to the skin the alignment that you want to be.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is possible for Miss Glad to at beauty questions by mail, she be happy to send you her pamphlet on "The New Figure" and "Culture," if you will write her on this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, 10 cents in coin, for each, to cover printing and mailing. Per questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's column.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

Xenia Central High's football team will lose six regulars by graduation next year but a sufficient number of experienced players will be left to auger well for prospects for a more successful season in 1931.

This season will be the last for two backfield men and four linemen. The senior players include Birch Bell, backfield mainstay for the last four years; Charles Adair, halfback; Marvin Spahr, guard; Robert Kinsey, tackle and more recently a fullback; Paul McClellan, center, and Sherman Huston, guard.

Loss of these veterans will be a blow and it will be difficult to find as capable replacements, but next season the Bucs should have more or less an experienced team to start with.

It was a good thing for the Bucs that none of the four players who performed in the backfield were injured during the Greenville game last week, inasmuch as there was not a single backfield substitute to inject into the game. Bell, Adair, Kinsey and Creamer were the only backs available. The others were laid up with injuries and other ailments. Freddie Dalton was out with the mumps; Howard Thompson was of course definitely out for the season with an injured shoulder; Paul Baldner had sustained a dislocated shoulder in practice several days before and William Wagner, although he accompanied the team on the trip, was in no shape to play. As it turned out there was no particular need for the services of a substitute back, which was exceedingly lucky.

The U. S. Naval Academy football team is ready to stage a football game for the benefit of the unemployed and may play a post-season contest with Fordham University.

George Getz, of the Illinois Unemployment Relief Committee (telegraphed) Senator Glenn (R) Illinois, to urge President Hoover, Secretary of War Hurley and Secretary of the Navy Adams to bring the Army and Navy teams together in Chicago for a benefit match, and this may be the means of bringing about a resumption of athletic relations between the two branches of the service.

Visual instruction methods of training college football teams have advanced tremendously throughout the country in the past few years, and now Coach Everett S. Dean, head basketball and baseball coach at Indiana University, has completed a set of seventy-four colored lantern slides illustrating new methods of instruction for basketball coaches.

These slides now are available for rental purposes and give form pictures, charts and explanations visualizing basketball plays and fundamentals.

Ohio Wesleyan's athletic department is also a strong believer in visual education. Coach George Gauthier has moving pictures taken of every game the Bishops play. The following week after the films have been hurried to Chicago or New York where they are finished, they are shown to the Wesleyan squad while coaches point out defects in the play of the team which the picture illustrates.

PALESTINE BAN ON JEWS LIFTED

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The British government today lifted the ban on the immigration of Jews to Palestine, according to Central News dispatches from Jerusalem received here.

The government's action today nullifies the total restriction on Jewish immigration which has been in effect in Palestine.

Under the new order 1500 permits for Jewish labor immigrants have been approved for the next six months.

WISCONSIN ELEVEN CALLED BEST OF BADGER TEAMS

Here are a few reasons why the University of Wisconsin eleven is called by many Big Ten writers the best in Badger football history. Blessed with a set of five backs, Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite has developed his line until now the Badgers are a fine, all-around eleven. Ernie Lusby, Sammy Behr and Charley Goldenburg are backs, Captain Milt Gantenbein is an end, while Ken Krueger is a tackle.

Spying On Sports

by BILL RITT

Central Press Sports Editor

With such up-and-coming communities as South Bend, Ind.; Pullman, Wash.; Hanover, N. H.; Tuscaloosa, Ala., respective homes of the Notre Dame, Washington State, Dartmouth and Alabama football establishments putting in premature claims on the national football championship, a new rival to football honors has popped up in all places, Florence, Italy.

The Florentine Chamber of Commerce, or whatever like organization sees to the proper boosting of cities in Mussoliniland, has announced emphatically that the game of football was originated, invented, devised and first committed in the city of Florence and to prove they mean it the city is going to celebrate the fact.

Until now the popular superstition was that football was born in the British Isles as a mild sort of mayhem conducted without weapons when there was no war to consume the excess energies of the soldiery. This game, tradition said, was brought across the Atlantic from England and eventually became the sport that fills the collegiate stadia with people and the collegiate athletic coffers with gold on autumnal Saturdays.

One British legend is that football originated in the sleepy town of Chester when the local citizenry after a hard-fought battle with the Danes in pre-medieval times amused themselves by kicking about the severed heads of their slain enemies.

This is, however, denied by the good burghers of Derby, England, who claim the game was invented and first played there in the year 217 to celebrate slaughter of Roman troops by Britons.

To all this the Florentines say no and now point to the writings of Count Giovanni e' Bardì who, in the fifteenth century, took goose quill in hand and committed the following:

"Calcio is a public game of two bands of youths on foot and without arms, who, with honorable intent, strive in peaceful wise to impel a ball of moderate size through the goal of the opposing side."

Oh! the Bands

Bardì then described the "pomp" which preceded the game of "calcio" or football, players being preceded on the field by trumpeters and drummers. Undoubtedly these were the forerunners of the 100-piece Western conference bands. It looks as though the Florentine boys have made out a good case for themselves. That "trumpeters and drummers" business sounds pretty collegiate.

However, Britishers scoff at all this, especially at what Bardì wrote, there being nothing "peaceful wise" about modern football.

Be that as it may the city of Florence will celebrate the origination of the game of football there next spring in a contest in the medieval manner being staged in the Teatro Della Signoria, the Times Square of Florence.

On second thought that business of celebrating the game in spring of the year 217, and the year's lowest prices were recorded for United Corporation, United Gas Improvement, North American, American Waterworks and Electric Power.

CLAIM 220 SEATS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—An unofficial claim of 220 Democratic members in the house of the seventy-second congress was made here today by the Democratic national committee. This claim was predicated upon Democratic candidates winning several contests in which Republican candidates now appear to have led.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—A sharp break today in the best grade dividend railroad stocks, carried a number of the market favorites to the lowest prices in from one to five years.

Selling of the rails followed naturally the dip in good grade utility and industrial stocks which has been in progress since Wednesday, and the decline in rail shares to a new low level for the year near yesterday's close, Union Pacific dropped off nearly 7 points to 185 as selling pressure became acute. New York Central at 131 showed a new loss of 4 points and the lowest price recorded since the market smash of March 1926.

FRAMED

Xenia Central High's football team will lose six regulars by graduation next year but a sufficient number of experienced players will be left to auger well for prospects for a more successful season in 1931.

This season will be the last for two backfield men and four linemen. The senior players include Birch Bell, backfield mainstay for the last four years; Charles Adair, halfback; Marvin Spahr, guard; Robert Kinsey, tackle and more recently a fullback; Paul McClellan, center, and Sherman Huston, guard.

Loss of these veterans will be a blow and it will be difficult to find as capable replacements, but next season the Bucs should have more or less an experienced team to start with.

It was a good thing for the Bucs that none of the four players who performed in the backfield were injured during the Greenville game last week, inasmuch as there was not a single backfield substitute to inject into the game. Bell, Adair, Kinsey and Creamer were the only backs available. The others were laid up with injuries and other ailments. Freddie Dalton was out with the mumps; Howard Thompson was of course definitely out for the season with an injured shoulder; Paul Baldner had sustained a dislocated shoulder in practice several days before and William Wagner, although he accompanied the team on the trip, was in no shape to play. As it turned out there was no particular need for the services of a substitute back, which was exceedingly lucky.

The U. S. Naval Academy football team is ready to stage a football game for the benefit of the unemployed and may play a post-season contest with Fordham University.

George Getz, of the Illinois Unemployment Relief Committee, telegraphed Senator Glenn (R) Illinois, to urge President Hoover, Secretary of War Hurley and Secretary of the Navy Adams to bring the Army and Navy teams together in Chicago for a benefit match, and this may be the means of bringing about a resumption of athletic relations between the two branches of the service.

Visual instruction methods of training college football teams have advanced tremendously throughout the country in the past few years, and now Coach Everett S. Dean, head basketball and baseball coach at Indiana University, has completed a set of seventy-four colored lantern slides illustrating new methods of instruction for basketball coaches.

These slides now are available for rental purposes and give form pictures, charts and explanations visualizing basketball plays and fundamentals.

Ohio Wesleyan's athletic department is also a strong believer in visual education. Coach George Gauthier has moving pictures taken of every game the Bishops play. The following week after the films have been hurried to Chicago or New York where they are finished, they are shown to the Wesleyan squad while coaches point out defects in the play of the team which the picture illustrates.

WISCONSIN ELEVEN CALLED BEST OF BADGER TEAMS

Here are a few reasons why the University of Wisconsin eleven is called by many Big Ten writers the best in Badger football history. Blessed with a set of fine backs, Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite has developed his line until now the Badgers are a fine, all-around eleven. Ernie Lusby, Sammy Behr and Charley Goldenburg are backs, Captain Milt Gantenbein is an end, while Ken Krueger is a tackle.

With such up-and-coming communities as South Bend, Ind.; Pullman, Wash.; Hanover, N. H.; and Tuscaloosa, Ala., respective homes of the Notre Dame, Washington State, Dartmouth and Alabama football establishments putting in premature claims on the national football championship, a new rival to football honors has popped up in, of all places, Florence, Italy.

The Florentine Chamber of Commerce, or whatever like organization seems to the proper boosting of cities in Mussoliniland, has announced emphatically that the game of football was originated, invented, devised and first committed in the city of Florence and to prove they mean it the city is going to celebrate the fact.

Until now the popular superstition was that football was born in the British Isles as a mild sort of mayhem conducted without weapons when there was no war to consume the excess energies of the soldiery. This game, tradition said, was brought across the Atlantic from England and eventually became the sport that fills the collegiate stadia with people and the collegiate athletic coffers with gold on autumn Saturdays.

One British legend is that football originated in the sleepy town of Chester when the local citizenry after a hard-fought battle with the Danes in pre-medieval times amused themselves by kicking about the severed heads of their slain enemies.

This is, however, denied by the good burghers of Derby, England, who claim the game was invented and first played there in the year 217 to celebrate slaughter of Roman troops by Britons.

To all this the Florentines say no and now point to the writings of Count Giovanni e' Bardj who, in the fifteenth century, took goose quill in hand and committed the following:

"Calcio is a public game of two bands of youths on foot and without arms, who, with honorable intent, strive in peaceful wise to impel a ball of moderate size through the goal of the opposing side."

Oh! the Bands

Bardj then described the "pomp" which preceded the game of "calcio" or football, players being preceded on the field by trumpeters and drummers. Undoubtedly these were the forerunners of the 100-piece Western conference bands. It looks as though the Florentine boys have made out a good case for themselves. That "trumpeters and drummers" business sounds pretty collegiate.

However, Britishers scoff at all this, especially at what Bardj wrote, there being nothing "peaceful wise" about modern football. Be that as it may the city of Florence will celebrate the origin of the game of football there next spring in a contest in the medieval manner being staged in the Teatro Della Signoria, the Times Square of Florence.

On second thought that business of celebrating the game in spring decides our vote. We believe the British are right. The Florentines did not invent football. They invented spring practice.

Skulls First "Pigskins"

One British legend is that football originated in the sleepy town of Chester when the local citizenry after a hard-fought battle with the Danes in pre-medieval times amused themselves by kicking about the severed heads of their slain enemies.

This is, however, denied by the good burghers of Derby, England, who claim the game was invented and first played there in the year 217 to celebrate slaughter of Roman troops by Britons.

To all this the Florentines say no and now point to the writings of Count Giovanni e' Bardj who, in the fifteenth century, took goose quill in hand and committed the following:

CLAIM 220 SEATS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—An unofficial claim of 220 Democratic members in the house of the seventy-second congress was made here today by the Democratic National committee. This claim was predicated upon Democratic candidates winning several contests in which Republican candidates now appear to have led.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—A sharp break today in the best grade utility and industrial stocks, carried a number of the market favorites to the lowest prices in from one to five years.

Selling of the rails followed naturally the dip in good grade utility and industrial stocks which has been in progress since Wednesday, and the decline in rail shares to a new low level for the year near yesterday's close. Union Pacific dropped off nearly 7 points to 185 as selling pressure became acute. New York Central at 131 showed a new loss of 4 points and the lowest price recorded since the market smash of March 1926.

Consolidated gas led the reaction in the utilities, breaking to 88 1/2, down 2, and the year's lowest prices were recorded for United Corporation, United Gas Improvement, North American, American Waterworks and Electric Power.

World-Famed Tenor In Metropolitan Cast

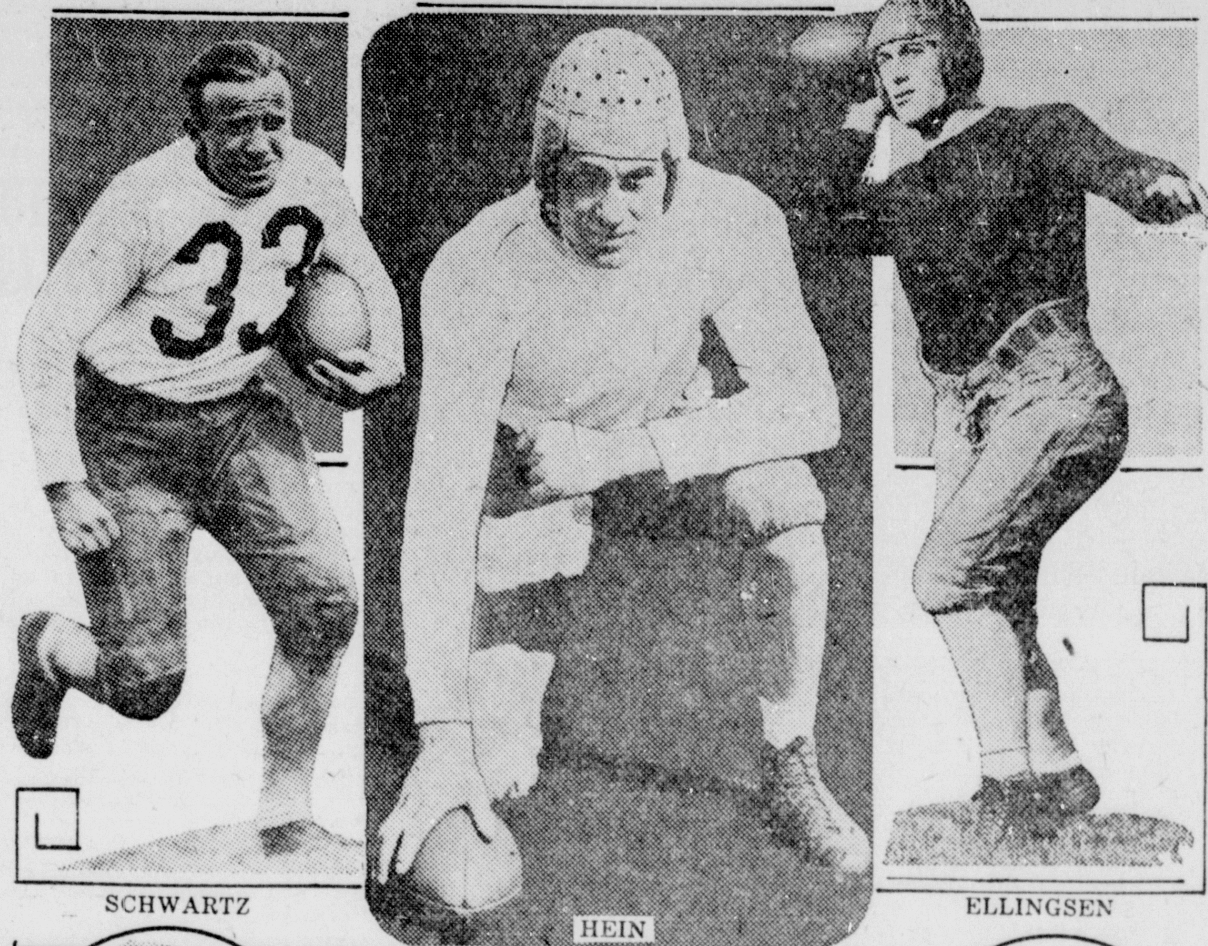

Giovanni Martinelli, world-famed tenor, will be back in his place at the head of the roster of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York City, when that celebrated institution reopens its doors for a brilliant new season. Verdi's immortal opera "Aida" will be the opening production.

Noted Comic Artist and Family

The numerous fans throughout the country who are being daily entertained in the many leading newspapers by the creations of the famous Milt Gross will be interested in seeing the noted artist in a happy family group. Above is shown Mrs. Gross, Milt Gross and the three little Grosses.

WASHINGTON STATE LOOMS AS NEW COAST CHAMPION

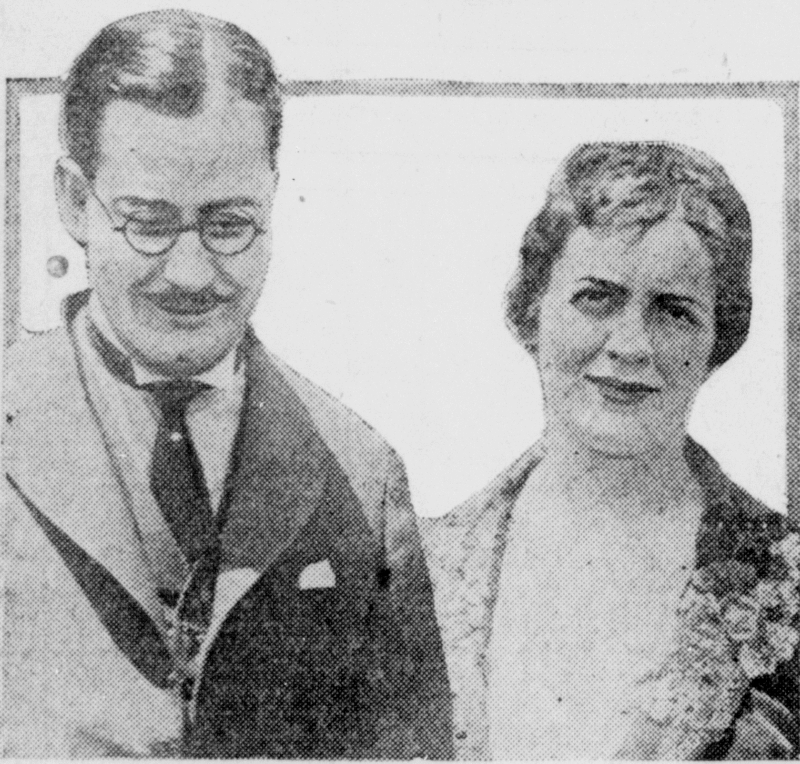

Only Washington stands between Washington State and the 1930 Pacific Coast conference football title, in the opinion of far-western grid experts. State's surprise win over Southern California has made the Cougars favorites for the title. State meets Washington Nov. 15. Above are some of Washington State's outstanding players: Elmer Schwartz, fullback; Porter Lainhart and Carl Ellingsen, halfbacks; Bud Hansen, guard, and Mel Hein, center.

At the left is Mr. Oswaldo Aranha, former secretary of the interior of the state of Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil, who headed the rebels of that state in the recent successful uprising against the Federal Government. At the right is Mr. Arthur Bernardes, former president of Brazil, who was one of the leaders in the recent successful revolutionary movement.

STRIKES GOLDEN FLOW OF OIL

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hargreaves, who have just received news of an initial daily flow of 4,500 barrels of oil at the latter's well, Grace Bryan No. 1, in the Venice, Cal., oil fields. Mrs. Hargreaves, who was Miss Grace Bryan, daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, thus becomes a leading oil operator of the district. The well is 6,000 feet deep.

COTTON FORCED INTO STORAGE

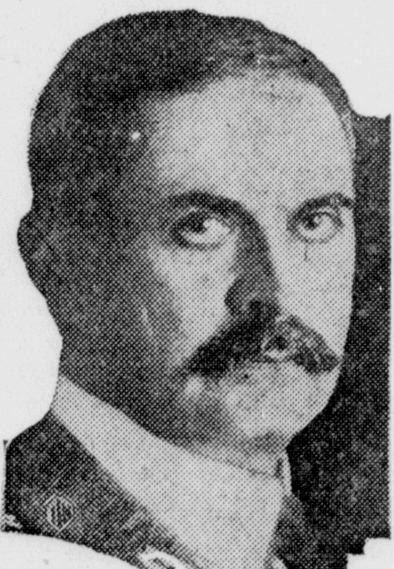

This photo of the Alabama state docks warehouse, at Mobile, Ala., conveys an indication of the extent to which cotton from the south's 1930 crop is being placed in storage, because of prevailing low prices.

Wins Trip to Paris

Miss Agnes C. Ringier, 24-year-old East Orange girl, wins a $3,000 free trip to Paris as a result of having been selected as the typical New Jersey girl. She works as private secretary in a New York investment house.

Winner of Nobel Prize for Medicine

Dr. Karl Landsteiner, eminent bacteriologist and pathologist, won the award of the Nobel Prize for Medicine. For eight years Dr. Landsteiner has been a member of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research.

Polo Cupid's Aid

Lieut. Carl A. Schaubel, crack polo player and coach of the polo team of Penn Military Academy (inset), is to wed Ruth Malcomson, the "Miss America" of the Atlantic City beauty pageant in 1925. The romance started when Schaubel bounced a polo ball into Miss Malcomson's lap while she was watching a game. (International Newsreel)

Will Bet Be Won?

Now that he no longer is a member of the bachelor ranks, H. L. Mencken, literary sophisticate, has been predicting that his old friend and co-worker, George Jean Nathan, will wed Lillian Gish, former screen star some time during the two-week Chicago run of her play, "Uncle Vanya," which begins soon. When Mencken was married he said he would eat his hat if Nathan didn't walk to the altar before Christmas. Miss Gish and Nathan are above.

LOUISIANA BOASTS YOUNGEST CO-ED

One of the youngest co-eds in the United States is Miss Dorothy Wood, 13, above, a freshman at Louisiana State university. Her home is in Litcher, La.

Claims Her Mickey Beat Her

Mrs. Margaret Walker, wife of Mickey Walker, middleweight champion of the world, with their children, Patricia and "Mickey," Jr. She was pictured in a New York City court when, for the third time, she instituted divorce proceedings against her pugilistic hubby. (International Newsreel)

Washington's Typical American Girl

A close-up of Miss Catherine McCaffery, a stenographer employed in the U. S. Government Printing Office, who was selected as the District's typical girl to compete in the nation-wide contest now under way. The winner of the contest will accompany Miss Gloria Swanson, screen star, on a trip to Paris.

WASHINGTON STATE LOOMS AS NEW COAST CHAMPION

Only Washington stands between Washington State and the 1930 Pacific Coast conference football title, in the opinion of far-western grid experts. State's surprise win over Southern California has made the Cougars favorites for the title. State meets Washington Nov. 15. Above are some of Washington State's outstanding players: Elmer Schwartz, fullback; Porter Lainhart and Carl Ellingsen, halfbacks; Bud Hansen, guard, and Mel Hein, center.

Will Bet Be Won?

Now that he no longer is a member of the bachelor ranks, H. L. Mencken, literary sophisticate, has been predicting that his old friend and co-worker, George Jean Nathan, will wed Lillian Gish, former screen star some time during the two-week Chicago run of her play, "Uncle Vanya," which begins soon. When Mencken was married he said he would eat his hat before Christmas. Miss Gish and Nathan are above.

WHY BELONG TO CHURCH?

Daniel Poling says, "I ought to belong to the Church because every man ought to pay his debts and do his share toward discharging the obligations of society. The Church has been not only the bearer of good news of personal salvation; it has been and is the supreme uplifting and conserving agency without which civilization would lapse into barbarism and press its way to perdition."

"I ought to belong to the Church because of memories; memories of things I can never forget; memories of faces that will never fade; memories of vows that are the glory of youth."

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

The teachings of the Sermon on the Mount is illustrated by the instances recorded in this lesson, showing truth in concrete and living forms, thus making it more vivid and vital.

V. 5, "And when he was entered into Capernaum, there came unto him a centurion, beseeching him. After his rejection at Nazareth, Jesus likely made his home in Capernaum, possibly in the home of Peter. The people of the town knew what marvelous things he was saying and doing among them being a centurion who because of well-established facts had faith enough to "beseech him." Religious teaching is fundamental to religious faith.

V. 6, "And saying, Lord, my servant lieth in the house sick of the palsy, grievously tormented." The centurion had little or no race prejudice and manifested such a love for his fellowman as to make his request acceptable.

V. 7, "And he saith unto him, I will come and heal him." Jesus did not hesitate and gave evidence of power to save; it was a case of dire need where all depends upon supernatural power. God has promised similar help with similar conditions.

V. 8, "And the centurion answered and said, Lord I am not worthy that thou shouldst come into my house." The best men never brag, but rather have a low estimate of themselves; he had a high estimate of Christ, believing that by a word he might speak, his servant would be healed.

V. 9, "For I also am a man under authority, having under myself soldiers; and I say to this one, Go, and he goeth; and to another, come and he cometh, and to my servant, do this and he doeth it." The centurion's character was symmetrical, strong, beautiful as he combined sympathy with strength, power, of commanding with self control in obeying.

V. 10, "And when Jesus heard it, he marvelled and said unto them that followed, verily I say unto you, I have not found so great a faith, no not in Israel." The centurion's faith was doubly rewarded with high praise for itself from Jesus and with the recovery of the slave.

Vs. 11, 12, "And I say unto you, that many shall come from the east and the west, and shall sit down with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven; but the sons of the kingdom shall be cast forth into the outer darkness; there shall be the weeping and gnashing of teeth." God is light, and whoever is an enemy of God, self-exiled from God, has no where to go but the darkness, which is outside of heaven.

Vs. 13, 14, 15, "And Jesus said unto the centurion, Go thy way; as thou hast believed so be it unto thee. And the servant was healed in that hour." Jesus effected healing of the body of the slave. All this was done because of the centurion's faith.

Vs. 16, 17, "And when Jesus was come into Peter's house, he saw his wife's mother lying sick with a fever. And he touched her hand and the fever left her and she arose and ministered unto him." Jesus had had a busy day worshipping first in the synagogue and then going about doing good. Worship must be shut up in a church but must go with us expressed in kindness, helpfulness, patience, courtesy, and Christ-like graces. Jesus continued doing good late into the evening as stated.

Vs. 18, 19, "And when even was come they brought many to him possessed with demons; and he cast out the spirits with a word and healed all that were sick." Faith in Jesus worked marvels.

SOMEBODY HAD TO STEER.
A thrilling tale was told recently of a cabin boy who took the helm of a wrecked and shattered ship and steered for twenty-four hours when none of the crew could reach him or his self chosen post. When he was praised for his courage, he replied quite casually, "It was nothing; somebody had to steer."

The same principle in a small way was recognized by a little daughter in a Cleveland home. Her mother was entertaining guests and when the time came to serve refreshments, each small girl had a definite part to perform.

"Do you like to do this?" asked one of the guests as a child brought her a plate.

"No, I can't say I do," said the candid child pleasantly, "but it has to be done."

The child was a wise little philosopher. It is a good thing to teach children early that there is much work in the world that has to be

WHY BELONG TO CHURCH?

Daniel Poling says, "I ought to belong to the Church because every man ought to pay his debts and do his share toward discharging the obligations of society. The Church has been not only the bearer of good news of personal salvation; it has been and is the supreme uplifting and conserving agency without which civilization would lapse into barbarism and press its way to perdition."

"I ought to belong to the Church because of memories; memories of things I can never forget; memories of faces that will never fade; memories of vows that are the glory of youth."

"Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?"

Creamed Comments
On S. S. Lesson

The teachings of the Sermon on the Mount is illustrated by the instances recorded in this lesson, showing truth in concrete and living forms, thus making it more vivid and vital.

V. 5. "And when he was entered into Capernaum, there came unto him a centurion, beseeching him." After his rejection at Nazareth, Jesus likely made his home in Capernaum, possibly in the home of Peter. The people of the town knew what marvelous things he was saying and doing among them being a centurion who because of well-established facts had faith enough to "beseech him." Religious teaching is fundamental to religious faith.

V. 6. "And saying, Lord, my servant lieth in the house sick of the palsy, grievously tormented." The centurion had little or no race prejudice and manifested such a love for his fellowman as to make his request acceptable.

V. 7. "And he saith unto him, I will come and heal him." Jesus did not hesitate and gave evidence of power to save; it was a case of dire need where all depends upon supernatural power; God has promised similar help with similar conditions.

V. 8. "And the centurion answered and said, Lord I am not worthy that thou shouldst come into my house." The best men never brag, but rather have a low estimate of themselves; he had a high estimate of Christ, believing that by a word he might speak, his servant would be healed.

V. 9. "For I also am a man under authority, having under myself soldiers; and I say to this one, Go, and he goeth; and to another, come and he cometh, and to my servant, do this and he doeth it." The centurion's character was symmetrical, strong, beautiful as he combined sympathy with strength, power of commanding with self control in obeying.

V. 10. "And when Jesus heard it, he marvelled and said unto them that followed, verily I say unto you, I have not found so great a faith, no not in Israel." The centurion's faith was doubly rewarded with high praise for itself from Jesus and with the recovery of the slave.

Vs. 11, 12. "And I say unto you, that many shall come from the east and the west, and shall sit down with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven."

but the sons of the kingdom shall be cast forth into the outer darkness; there shall be the weeping and gnashing of teeth." God is light, and whoever is an enemy of God, self-exiled from God, has nowhere to go but the darkness, which is outside of heaven.

V. 13. "And Jesus said unto the centurion, Go thy way; as thou hast believed so be it unto thee: and the servant was healed in that hour." Jesus effected healing of the body of the slave. All this was done because of the centurion's faith.

Vs. 14, 15. "And when Jesus was come into Peter's house, he saw his wife's mother lying sick with a fever, and he touched her hand and the fever left her and she arose and ministered unto him." Jesus had had a busy day worshipping first in the synagogue and then going about doing good. Worship cannot be shut up in a church but must go with us expressed in kindness, helpfulness, patience, courtesy and Christ-like graces. Jesus continued doing good late into the evening as stated.

Vs. 16, 17. "And when even was come they brought many to him possessed with demons; and he cast out the spirits with a word and healed all that were sick." Faith in Jesus worked marvels.

Home Education

SOMEBODY HAD TO STEER

A thrilling tale was told recently of a cabin boy who took the helm of a wrecked and shattered ship and steered for twenty-four hours when none of the crew could reach him or his self chosen post. When he was praised for his courage, he replied quite casually, "It was nothing; somebody had to steer."

The same principle in a small way was recognized by a little daughter in a Cleveland home. Her mother was entertaining guests and when the time came to serve refreshments, each small girl had a definite part to perform.

"Do you like to do this?" asked one of the guests as a child brought her a plate.

"No, I can't say I do," said the candid child pleasantly, "but it has to be done."

The child was a wise little philosopher. It is a good thing to teach children early that there is much work in the world that has to be done.

Church Forum

What is the purpose of worship in the Sunday School?

Worship in the Sunday School has a three fold purpose: 1. To deepen the religious feeling by expressing it. The old axiom, "No impression without expression" may be applied to love and devotion. The expression of any feeling tends to deepen and intensify that feeling, making it permanent in character. Religious ideas gained by instruction should lead to religious feelings expressed in worship and the act of worship ought to furnish the right motive for service.

The second purpose is to vitalize religious knowledge. As the photographic plate must first be sensitized before it is exposed to the light to receive the image, so the soul must be sensitized to God before it is exposed to instruction in His word; and this is accomplished through the experience of worship. Through worship knowledge is vitalized and made dynamic.

The final purpose of worship in the Sunday School is to train for church worship to the degree that its members will be able to participate actively and intelligently in the services of the church. The church has the right to expect its school to instruct its members in Christian truth, train them for Christian service and develop them in Christian worship; one of the tests of a good church school is found in its faithfulness and efficiency in fulfilling these three purposes.

Discussion on Questions S. S. Lesson

1. How did a Roman officer come to have soldiers in Judea?
2. What are the elements of strength in a strong character?
3. How may he be strong?
4. How does faith in God start?
5. How did our faith in a Redeemer begin?
6. Why did the centurion's faith amaze Jesus?
7. How is healing of the body to be related to Christianity?

Clericus says, "Energy of will is the central power that gives efficiency to all the other powers of personality. Many are good but because they lack energy, they are good for nothing. Firmness of decision, force of purpose, power to rule over others and especially to rule one's self are as essential elements of character as are sympathy and generosity."

"Help us to give heed to Christian teachings and with humility approach God with praises and petitions."

BOOK REVIEW

"Facing Forward, Poems of Courage," by Morris and Adams, Sullivan and Co., N. Y., is a compilation of poems by popular poets, having as their theme courage. It is a companion volume to "It Can Be Done" poems of inspiration.
"Church Work With Young People," by Stock, Pilgrim Press presents plans and principles which can be applied successfully in the local church. It gives practical suggestions for effective organization of a program for intermediates, seniors and young people.

The little old house in which Robert Raikes assembled the first Sunday School class in the world is still standing in Gloucester, England. It is a modest, two-story building opening directly into a room occupying the entire front, would accommodate about twenty children.

Elmer G. Sperry, inventor of the gyro-compass and gyro-compass, placed a clause in his will giving $1,000,000 in trust to the Y. M. C. A. in grateful memory of all it did for him.

CHAPTER 33

When Inspector Linscott and Bruce Armstrong returned to Alston Manor, Lady Dorothy and Lady Gwendolen were already at luncheon. In spite of the exciting happenings of that morning, it was on the whole a silent meal, during which everyone appeared absorbed in his or her own thoughts.

But immediately the meal was over, and all rose from the table, Inspector Linscott followed Lady Gwendolen and stopped her in the corridor.

"Lady Gwendolen, I would like to have a word with you!"

"I'm glad," said the girl, with a smile. "The fact is, I was wishing I could have a talk with you. Let's go into the morning room. It will be quiet there, and there will be little danger of being disturbed."

"Do you mind my smoking?" asked the Inspector when they had seated themselves in the large comfortable chairs. "It helps me to think."

"Not at all," Lady Gwendolen replied, with an effort at a laugh. "You may smoke seven cigars all at once if they'll only help you to solve the mystery and allow you to let Mr. Smith out!"

"We're all anxious to do that, Lady Gwendolen," the Inspector assured her gravely. "And now, as he observed, changing the tone of voice to one of business, and sending vigorous puffs of smoke into the air, "what I want of you is this. I desire to spare your feelings as much as possible, of course. But I should like you to tell me everything you know of Lord Winston's past life in Canada. For I have a strong conviction that the murder was committed by a Canadian, certainly by someone who knew your brother in Canada."

"I have been thinking hard, and I've come to a similar conclusion," said Lady Gwendolen earnestly. "And I'm quite ready to tell all I know about poor Edward. My brother was an exceptionally honest, straightforward man; in fact, the kind that makes enemies—or friends, for that matter—easily. And this morning, as I was trying to think of his past, a memory came back to me of a story he once told me of his own life. It is scant enough in its way; yet, scant as it is, I thought it might just furnish a clue."

"It is the scantiest things which nearly always do furnish the clues, Lady Winston," said the Inspector, now all alert and note-book in his hand. "Please don't overlook the slightest detail. The one seemingly insignificant detail may be everything. That's been by frequent experience. But please go on!"

"It happened in this way, Inspector Linscott. One day—I was about seventeen then—like the inquisitive thing I was, I was rummaging through Edward's effects. It was in his den at home, where he kept all sorts of curious trophies from his shooting expeditions and that sort of thing, you know; at one time he loved shooting above everything in the world. Then suddenly, without any ostensible reason, he gave it up."

"When was that? I mean when did your brother give up shooting?"

"Let me see. . . ." Lady Gwendolen puckered her forehead into a frown. "It must have been when he was twenty-one . . . no, twenty! That's about ten years ago."

"Thank you, Lady Gwendolen. Please continue."

"Well, as I was saying, I was rummaging through his things. And he was standing by and teasing me for being so very curious. And as I went on rummaging, I came across a small leather case, and on opening it I found myself looking at a knife, exactly like the one that killed my brother. You see, that is why I cried out on seeing it that it was Edward's; they were so exactly alike, as far as I can remember his, and I had never seen a similar one until that night." Her voice broke, but she immediately went on bravely. "I took it out of the case and studied it for a moment or two. My brother's back was turned on me at the time. Then suddenly he turned around, and when he saw what I was doing, his face grew quite ashen pale. 'Put that down, Gwen! Put that down!' he shouted. I thought there was more alarm than vexation in his voice. His shout, I remember, frightened me, and in my fright I dropped the knife on the floor, where it stuck on end. Then he walked over, picked up the knife, put it back in its sheath, then into the leather case, and without a word put it away. A few moments afterwards how—well I recall it all now!—he turned to me more gently, and said: 'I am sorry, Gwen, to have seemed so rude to you, but that knife brings back unpleasant memories. . . .'

Lady Gwendolen paused. Her own mind seemed to be desperately playing with tragic memories, too recent to be borne with equanimity. Tears struggled in her eyes, as she fought hard to control her feelings.

"And did he tell you what these unpleasant memories were?" Inspector Linscott prompted her gently.

"Yes, but not until some time afterwards. You see, I had to coax him to do it. I was consumed with curiosity, you see. And he finally consented. I will try to tell the story as near as possible in his own words."

She spoke in a low voice, and the Inspector moved his chair nearer so as to catch every word.

"It appears," she began, "that in one of his hunting expeditions he picked up two fur-traders and chummed with them. These three agreed to go along together—that was his last hunting expedition—he was twenty then. It was when he got the knife . . . but there, I'm anticipating my story. I must first tell you who the fur-traders were. The name of one was Pierre Legrange. . . ."

"French?" interrupted the Inspector questioningly.

"Precisely," said Lady Gwendolen. "He was a nice French-Canadian, with a drop of Red Indian blood in him, I believe. The other was Bruin Peters. . . ."

"What!" cried the Inspector, almost springing from his chair. "Why, then, is certainly curious! I mean about the initials of 'B. P.' But do go on!" The Inspector was beginning to show some excitement as he had not shown since the case began.

"My brother," went on the narrator, "was much taken with Pierre, and he noticed an equal fondness in Pierre for him. But as the weeks went by he began to observe a secret. This appeared between the two. . . . This appears to have been due to the growing collection of skins, and to the necessity for their ultimate sharing. As they were getting nearer and nearer to civilization, where the spoils were to be divided, the feud grew more and more open. Indeed, on one occasion, Edward appears to have saved Pierre's life. My brother was in gratitude for this that Pierre begged Edward to accept it as a souvenir. . . ."

"In what way did he save Pierre's life?" asked Inspector Linscott.

"As I remember my brother told me it happened in this way," explained Lady Gwendolen. "They happened to be near a swampy place. Pierre was trying to catch some fish. Bruin Peters, evidently unsuspecting my brother's presence, was seen by Edward to steal quietly round some huge chunks of ice, which concealed Bruin from Pierre. His intention was quite evident. There was a knife in his hand. He had apparently meant to stab Pierre and push him over into the icy water. My brother, who was approaching from the opposite direction, faced the intending murderer, and whipped out his revolver, meaning to shoot if Bruin attempted to carry out his plan. Just then Bruin Peters looked up and saw Edward watching him. He immediately put away his knife, but not before he had flung at Edward a glance of intense hatred. My brother knew then that he had made a deadly enemy, a man who would neither forget nor forgive. . . . For the rest of the journey he kept a sharp watch. A few days later they reached a trading post. . . ."

Lady Gwendolen paused for a moment, and it was evident that she was trying to recall accurately the story as her brother had told it. Inspector Linscott waited patiently. He was eager to hear the rest of the story, and see how it could be fitted in with his hypothesis about the mysterious Canadian, Willis Hanson.

"Here," resumed Lady Gwendolen, "Pierre Legrange and Bruin Peters entered a saloon, where they stayed for some time, and apparently drank rather heavily. My brother, who was outside, saw them as they came out, and heard them quarrelling. Scanting trouble, he followed them as they walked across the snow. It was a moonlight night, and he could see the two figures plainly. He was a considerable number of yards behind them. They were too intent on their own affair to turn around. Suddenly he saw them at grips, he saw the flash of a knife, a wild lunge, and one man prone on the snow. He didn't know which of the two had been hurt, but a premonition told him it was Pierre. He began to run. The other, who was still alive, must have caught sight of him as he was running, for he turned and fled, disappearing behind the brow of the hill."

IT WAS LOCKED A MYSTERY STORY

BY JOHN HAWK RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSN. INC.

CHAPTER 33

When Inspector Linscott and Bruce Armstrong returned to Alston Manor, Lady Dorothy and Lady Gwendolen were already at lunch. In spite of the exciting happenings of that morning, it was on the whole a silent meal, during which everyone appeared absorbed in his or her own thoughts.

But immediately the meal was over, and all rose from the table, Inspector Linscott followed Lady Gwendolen and stopped her in the corridor.

"Lady Gwendolen, I would like to have a word with you!"

"I'm glad," said the girl, with a smile. "The fact is, I was wishing I could have a talk with you. Let's go into the morning room. It will be quiet there, and there will be little danger of being disturbed."

"Do you mind my smoking?" asked the Inspector when they had seated themselves in the large comfortable chairs. "It helps me to think."

"Not at all," Lady Gwendolen replied, with an effort at a laugh. "You may smoke seven cigars all at once if they'll only help you to solve the mystery and allow you to let Mr. Smith out!"

"We're all anxious to do that, Lady Gwendolen," the Inspector assured her gravely. "And now, he observed, changing the tone of voice to one of business, and sending vigorous puffs of smoke into the air, "what I want of you is this. I desire to spare your feelings as much as possible, of course. But I should like you to tell me everything you know of Lord Winston's past life in Canada. For I have a strong conviction that the murder was committed by a Canadian, certainly by someone who knew your brother in Canada."

"I have been thinking hard, and I've come to a similar conclusion," said Lady Gwendolen earnestly. "And I'm quite ready to tell all I know about poor Edward. My brother was an exceptionally honest, straightforward man; in fact, the kind that makes enemies—of friends, for that matter—easily. And this morning, as I was trying to think of his past, a memory came back to me of a story he once told me of his own life. It is scant enough in its way; yet, scant as it is, I thought it might just furnish a clue."

"It is the scantiest things which nearly always do furnish the clues," Lady Winston said the Inspector, now all alert and note-book in his hand. "Please don't overlook the slightest detail. The one seemingly insignificant detail may be everything. That's been by frequent experience. But please go on!"

"It happened in this way, Inspector Linscott. One day—I was about seventeen then—like the inquisitive thing I was, I was rummaging through Edward's effects. It was in his den at home where he kept all sorts of curious trophies from his shooting expeditions and that sort of thing, you know; at one time he loved shooting above everything in the world. Then suddenly, without any ostensible reason, he gave it up."

"When was that? I mean when did your brother give up shooting?"

"Let me see..." Lady Gwendolen puckered her forehead into a frown. "It must have been when he was twenty-one... no, twenty! That's about ten years ago."

"Thank you, Lady Gwendolen. Please continue."

"Well, as I was saying, I was rummaging through his things. And he was standing by and teasing me for being so very curious. And as I went on rummaging, I came across a small leather case, and on opening it I found myself looking at a knife, exactly like the one that killed my brother. You see, that is why I cried out on seeing it that it was Edward's; they were so exactly alike, as far as I can remember his, and I had never seen a similar one until that night." Her voice broke, but she immediately went on bravely. "I took it out of the case and studied it for a moment or two. My brother's back was turned on me at the time. Then suddenly he turned around, and when he saw what I was doing, his face grew quite ashen pale. 'Put that down, Gwen! Put that down!' he shouted. I thought there was more alarm than vexation in his voice. His shout, I remember, frightened me, and in my fright I dropped the knife on the floor, where it stuck on end. Then he walked over, picked up the knife, put it back in its sheath, then into the leather case, and without a word put it away. A few moments afterwards how—well I recall it all now!—he turned to me more gently, and said: 'I am sorry, Gwen, to have seemed so rude to you, but that knife brings back unpleasant memories...'

Lady Gwendolen paused. Her own mind seemed to be desperately playing with tragic memories, too recent to be borne with equanimity. Tears struggled in her eyes, as she fought hard to control her feelings.

"And did he tell you what these unpleasant memories were?" Inspector Linscott prompted her gently.

"Yes, but not until some time afterwards. You see, I had to coax him to do it. I was consumed with curiosity, you see. And he finally consented. I will try to tell the story as near as possible in his own words."

She spoke in a low voice, and the Inspector moved his chair nearer so as to catch every word.

"It appears," she began, "that in one of his hunting expeditions he picked up two fur-traders and chummed with them. These three agreed to go along together—that was his last hunting expedition—he was twenty then. It was when he got the knife... but there, I'm anticipating my story. I must first tell you who the fur-traders were. The name of one was Pierre Legrange..."

"French?" interrupted the Inspector questioningly.

"Precisely," said Lady Gwendolen. "He was a nice French Canadian, with a drop of Red Indian blood in him, I believe. The other was Bruin Peters..."

"What!" cried the Inspector, almost springing from his chair. "Why, that is certainly curious! I mean about the initials of 'B. P.' But do go on!" The Inspector was beginning to show such excitement as he had not shown since the case began.

Indeed, on one occasion, Edward appears to have saved Pierre's life... and it was in gratitude for this that Pierre begged Edward to accept it knife as a souvenir..."

"In what way did he save Pierre's life?" asked Inspector Linscott.

"As I remember my brother told me, it happened in this way," explained Lady Gwendolen. "They happened to be near some ice floes. Pierre was trying to catch some fish. Bruin Peters, evidently unsuspecting my brother's presence, was seen by Edward to steal quietly round some huge chunks of ice, which concealed Bruin from Pierre. His intention was quite evident. The Theater

Carl Laemmle, of Universal Pictures, has been awarded the annual bronze award for producing the outstanding picture of the year in the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. The award, made yesterday, was for producing "All Quiet On the Western Front."

Conrad Nagel presided at the C. Nugent, Karl Dane, Claire McDowell and others in the cast.

Fox's picture, "Scotland Yard," is at the Bijou now, featuring Edmund Lowe, Joan Bennett and Barbara Leonard. Lowe does a dual role in the film, no easy trick in the talkies.

The other awards made were:
Performance by actress: Norma Shearer in "The Divorcee";
Performance by actor: George Arliss in "Disraeli";
Achievement by director: Lewis

Speaking of dual roles however, Ruth Chatterton probably would get the prize in this contest. In a scene from "The Right to Love," Miss Chatterton sits on her own lap. It's the good old double exposure gag in one of its best moments.

Lawrence Tibbett has completed "The Southerner" in record time and opened a concert tour in Santa Barbara. He made two pictures the summer and fall, the other being "The New Moon."

Twenty Years '10- Ago -'30

The Miami Grain Co. has been recognized under the new name of the Xenia Grain Co. with a capital of $10,000.

A sweeping Democratic victory which includes the entire state ticket and also the legislative was gained in Ohio Tuesday but Greene County elected the entire local Republican ticket.

A big red rooster, emblem of the victorious Democratic party and gift to Henry Farrell, Democratic clerk of the local election board, is perched on the back of a chair and presiding with dignified mien in the election board room today.

"The Big House," which earned two awards in the list, is coming to the Bijou Theater Monday to open a four-day run.

And Governor Myers V. Cooper was defeated for re-election Tuesday. These two statements are apparently not pertinent until it is recalled that the film was barred from Ohio for some time because the administration believed it would call attention to prison conditions in this state as emphasized by the penitentiary holocaust last April.

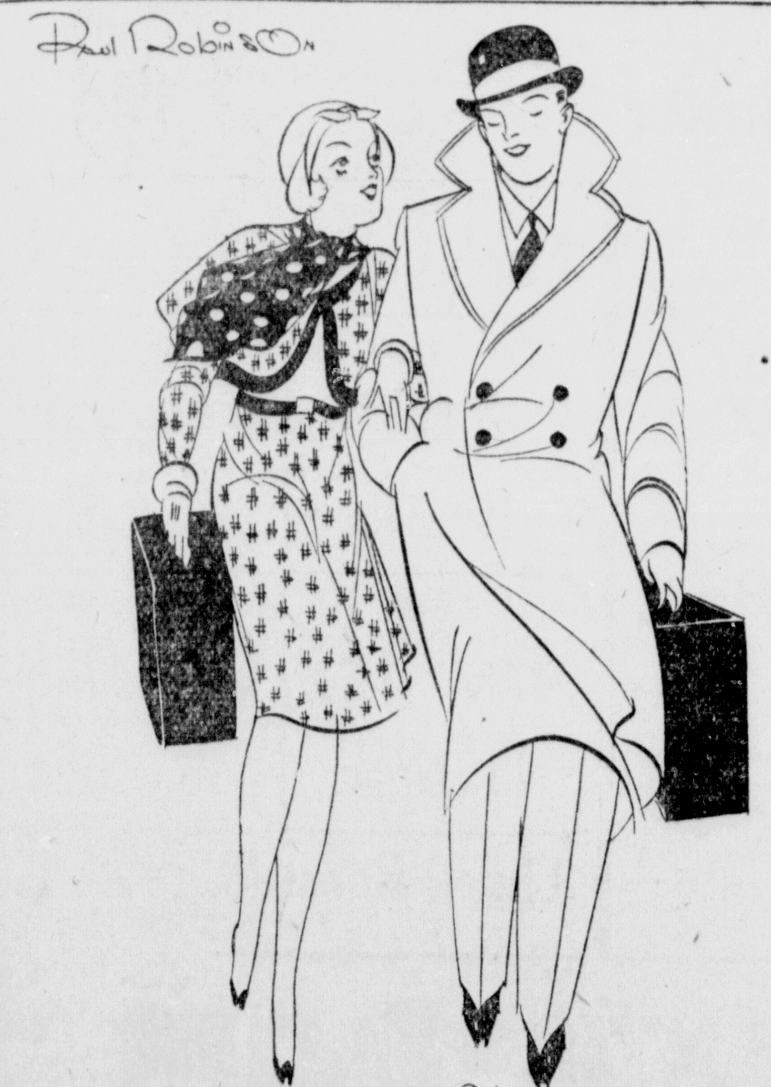

The film is remarkably true to prison detail, representing considerable research in this line, is well done photographically and is well cast with Chester Morris, Wallace Beery, Lewis Stone, Robert Montgomery, Leila Hyams, J. T. Rucker, jointly.

Art direction achievement: "King of Jazz," Herman Rosse.

LEROY WOLF LEADS TICKET HERE
TUESDAY FINAL COUNT SHOWS

Completion of the official count of ballots cast at Tuesday's election revealed discrepancies in the unofficial tabulation but no changes in the results in any race or issue, the Greene County board of elections announced Thursday.

Election board officials announced a total of 11,184 votes were cast and that Leroy Wolf was elected on the Republican ticket, led the ticket with 6,240 votes. Governor-elect George White received the most votes on the Democratic ticket, polling 5,078, closely followed by Harry M. Fisher, city commissioner and Democratic candidate for sheriff, who received 5,069.

Here is the complete official vote recorded for local and state candidates, on the judicial ticket and on the state amendment:

Governor—Cooper, Rep., 5,581; White, Dem., 5,078.

AARON SHEPHERD
CALLED BY DEATH

Aaron Shepherd, 80, a life-long resident of Cedarville and vicinity, died at his home in that village Thursday morning at 5:30 o'clock. He had been in failing health for five years, due to infirmities of age and complications and his condition had been serious for the past six weeks.

For many years he was employed by the Hagar Straw Board and Paper Co. before that he was engaged in farming near Cedarville. He was a member of the Baptist Church, which was disbanded in Cedarville a number of years ago. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Martha Brenner Shepherd; a step-son, Charles Sparrow, Cedarville and four brothers: Moses, Indiana; James and William, Dayton and Joseph, Rockford, O. Funeral services will be held at the McMillan Funeral Parlors in Cedarville Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock and will be in charge of the Rev. W. P. Harriman. Burial will be made in the Baptist Cemetery at Cedarville.

MOST AFFECTIONATE KANSAS CO-ED

When it comes to love, Mildred Hoffman of Lawrence, Kas., is an expert, her fellow students declare, for they have chosen her "the most affectionate co-ed" at the University of Kansas.

EAST END NEWS

Miss Sarah C. Williamson, Principal of the Suehn Industrial Mission, Monrovia, Liberia, West Africa, delivered one of the best lectures at Zion Baptist Church Wednesday evening on the work she has been engaged in for the past six years among the natives of that heathen land. In her pleasing manner she portrayed most vividly the inhuman condition, under which most of the time she has labored. Miss Williamson is on a furlough traveling in the interest of the school because of needed funds whereby they can exist. Eighteen dollars was taken in a collection to assist the work. Her pastor, the Rev. T. J. Smith of Zion Church Dayton, in company with other members of the congregation were present also visiting ministers of the city which added much to the interest of the meeting. An appreciative audience greeted this young missionary woman. Members from the various church choirs assisted and rendered beautiful music for the occasion.

The Zion Baptist Missionary Society held its regular meeting Thursday at the home of Miss L. J. Payne, E. Market St. The devotional part was conducted by Mrs. M. E. Harris. Mrs. Cora Hawkins, vice president, presided. The report of sick and shut-ins during the month was made. Mrs. Viola Ward, delegate to the Woman's Auxiliary to the General Association that met with the Bethel Baptist Church, Dayton, October 16 and 17, made an excellent report of the two days' session which was interesting. The society will meet in its regular session in December at the home of Mrs. Cora Hawkins, E. Main St.

THE ITCHING OF ECZEMA

Don't endure the torment another day. Just get a jar of Resinol Ointment and a cake of Resinol Soap from your nearest druggist. Bathe the affected parts with the soap and warm water, dry lightly, and apply the ointment. That's all there is to it but you will be amazed to see how quickly the itching stops, the inflammation is reduced, and healing begins.
